FOREWORD

The Patriot of 1962 reflected the unfolding of Patrick Henry's first shining year. A kaleidoscopic view of the many facets of school life disclosed the detailed planning and adjustment necessary for beginning an exciting new life away from Jefferson, our parent school. Now, the first growing pains have subsided. The Patriot of 1963 takes a second, and deeper, look at the glamorous modern architecture, the spacious and tastefully planted campus, the expanded curriculum, and all the activities which make up our daily life at Patrick Henry.

Mrs. Fallwell Retires

Madame Henriette Messenger Fallwell, bestowing traditional Gallic Salutation upon Robert Klink, is an inspired teacher, mother and grandmother, French cook, poet, and scholar.

We feel exceedingly fortunate to honor you because of your very special brand of inspiration. Your classroom has been filled with the joy of learning and has produced pleasure in our school life and in our club and newspaper work. Never binding your classes to textbook study only, you have added your inimitable personal touch, giving us a better understanding of the history, literature, and art of your homeland.

To give honor to boys who have excelled in both academic and athletic fields, you established the Jacques and André Fallwell Awards last year in memory of your two sons.

In appreciation for all you have done for the school, and for us as individuals, to you we dedicate the 1963 Patriot . . .

Patrick Henry an excellent example of modern architectural design.

The Administration Establishes School Policies

Our three schools-within-a-school allow for a close relationship between faculty and students. However, the work within the three halls must be planned and coordinated so they will function not only individually, but as a single high school. It is the difficult job of the principal, Mr. Harold Secord, and his staff to plan and harmonize the school's long-range, short-range, and immediate plans.

Mr. Secord is assisted by a clerical staff composed of Mrs. Una White, Mrs. Cornelia Grant, and Miss Carol Cundiff. Keeping students' records, carrying out school business, and sending transcripts and recommendations to colleges and employers are only a few of their duties. These secretaries are aided by the following student office assistants: J. Sydenstricker, N. Moss, S. McGarrell, B. Stanley, M. Moseley, B. Mason, and A. Nichols.

Mr. Graybill, Director of Student Activities, arranges the time and place for all school functions and takes responsibility for all incoming and outgoing money. He is considered the treasurer of Patrick Henry and is ex-officio business manager of all school projects. His student helpers are V. Burnett, A. Lynch, J. A. Fulton, J. Davis, S. Hood, R. Hancock, and C. Steele.

Mr. Secord reviews the afternoon's schedule with Mrs. White.

Miss Cundiff glances out of her office window in response to a knock by photographer, Harold Burnley.

Mrs. White is delighted when the yearbook photographer breaks into the monotony of filling out school reports.

Mrs. Grant pauses in the tedious task of counting school money.

Mr. Graybill files the receipts from the Junior-Senior Prom.

Mr. Pitzer, Dean of McQuilken Hall, tackles some of his massive paper work.

The Three Units Are Headed By Deans

Nearly all of a student's contacts with the administration are through the dean of his hall. And because students remain in the same hall throughout high school at Patrick Henry, they get to know their deans with a closeness that is desirable. Each of the deans is the head of his hall, and carries out about the same administrative duties as a principal in a small school.

Mr. Lewis Pitzer is dean of McQuilken Hall, Mr. Donald Bartol, of Parsons Hall, and Mr. Benjamin Taylor, of Persinger Hall. All three of these men have much experience in the field of education—both as classroom teachers and school administrators.

These deans run their halls as a team in friendly hall competition. Each dean gets to know the students in his hall very well and becomes acquainted with the individual student's special problems and needs, which allows for a close student-dean relationship.

Mr. Bartol, Dean of Parsons Hall, jots down notes from a phone conversation with a school patron.

Mr. Taylor, Dean of Persinger Hall, checks on attendance records for his Hall.

Mrs. Ward counsels a student on his college application.

Mr. Bishop checks over the report card of one of his students.

Guidance Counselors Help Plan

The curriculum of the school is set up by the administration, but it is the important job of the Guidance Department to coordinate these courses offered to the ambition, talents, and needs of the individual student. This department, headed by Mr. James Bishop, aids Patrick Henry students in recognizing their abilities and developing them to the student's fullest benefit. The guidance counselors recommend colleges and universities to students and advise them on their applications. They also keep up with job opportunities and advise students on the availability of scholarships. The guidance advisors are Mr. Carl Nave, McQuilken Hall, Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, Parsons Hall, and Miss Margaret Martin, Persinger Hall.

Miss Martin looks up a college in Lovejoy's College Guide for Carol Rapp.

Mr. Nave refers to a student's record before writing a college recommendation.

Students' Courses

The student keeps the same guidance counselor throughout his four years of high school at Patrick Henry, and therefore the counselor is able to familiarize himself with the student's problems and needs. A close relationship is developed between the counselor and student, and together they plot the student's future.

ACADEMIC LIFE

In spite of the hard work involved, students and teachers alike respond to the challenging and expanded curriculum. New and more inclusive courses are being developed in modern languages, English, mathematics, history, science, the arts, and physical education. An exciting innovation this year was the class reading of Our Town in the amphitheatre and later the Fine Arts presentation, Serata.

Last year teachers and Patrick Henry students participated in a new English program. During the summer of 1962, area teachers meeting in curriculum revision workshops planned a system in which junior high students concentrate their efforts on the learning and usage of grammar. Such a system left the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades free for an increase of reading, writing, and listening experiences.

During the first six weeks all students were given diagnostic tests which indicated their weaknesses and strengths in grammar. Thus teachers knew what emphasis to make in academic, general, and special English classes.

Use of the Reading Improvement Lab was made available to any pupil who felt he would benefit. Six classes a day were taught. This was a non-credit course substituted for study hall and taken only as long as the student needed instruction.

Mrs. Lottie W. Tice, English, B.A., University of Alabama, Advisor Red Cross.

Miss Jean L. Umberger, English, B.A., Roanoke College; M.Ed., University of Missouri, Advisor Y-Teen Interclub Council.

Mrs. Elizabeth O. Ward, English, Guidance, B.S., Mary Washington College.

Mrs. Virginia D. Wood, English, B.A., Roanoke College, Advisor The Statesman newspaper, Quill and Scroll.

Sixth period English classes are intrigued as they watch a performance of Thornton Wilder's Our Town. A three-day reading by students of Miss Umberger, Mrs. Richardson, and Mrs.

Dorsey in the school amphitheatre, marked its inauguration for use as an outdoor classroom.

English students have done not only independent reading but often have read the same book for class discussion. Occasionally groups in a class read various books by one author. The style, theme, or point of view of an author could thus be explored and evaluated in class discussion.

Because of increased interest in wide reading in depth, World Literature was offered in two sections rather than one. Next year classes in Shakespeare, English History, and Grammar and Composition Review will be added to the present curriculum.

Through Hollins College, Patrick Henry became the only school in the country to test a programmed Library Science course. Students who wanted to sharpen their skills in using library facilities participated in it. This program will be incorporated into ninth or tenth grade English curriculum next year.

In Speech classes pupils were given an opportunity to learn the techniques of effective communication through panel or group discussions, individual speeches, or preparation for assemblies. They were also given an introduction to dramatic arts and next year this course will become a part of the English curriculum. Also offered were courses in stage craft and play production which often led to interest in Dramatics Club work.

In school assemblies, professors from nearby colleges, visiting writers, ministers, and other area scholars spoke on literary trends and discussed writers and their contributions to American thought. Later these topics were discussed in smaller classroom groups.

Combining classes helped make English instruction more diversified. For grouped English classes, teachers lectured and sometimes students presented panel discussions, or acted out or read plays.

Every student and teacher of all departments was provided with a Theme Grading Guide designed to help in the grading and correction of written work. A suggested summer and college preparatory reading list was also distributed. This past spring a detailed guide for use in writing research papers has been worked out and used in some classes. Every Patrick Henry student can look forward to receiving this guide in September and making frequent use of it next year.

Sue Hawkins, next year's Editor of the Quill, accepts her membership pin and a handshake from Sam Gantt, President of the Quill and Scroll.

Superior Achievements Merit Recognition

At the annual Quill and Scroll Banquet in May, thirty-two new members were inducted into the Quill and Scroll National Honor Society for high school journalists, making a total of forty-five members in the Quill and Scroll.

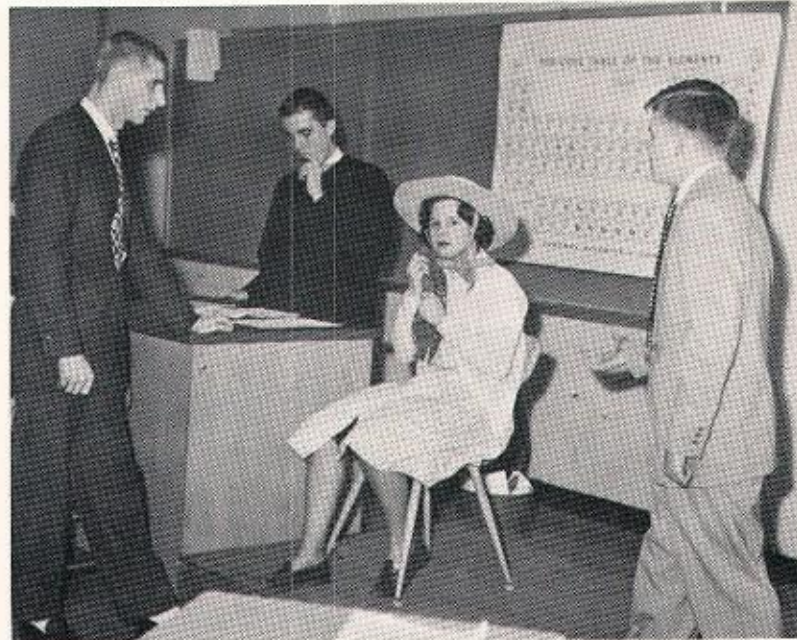

During the last weeks of school, the Creative Writing class was delighted to receive two gold trophies from the Virginia High School League. A booklet including several types of prose and poetry, and Quill magazine were submitted by Patrick Henry to the state creative writing contest. Each was a first place and trophy winner.

In District Forensic activities, Patrick Henry won three first places and three second. The affirmative debate by Stuart Singer and Sharon Stevens, Pam Carolan, and Marty Fant received the first place awards. Lauren Langley (Girls Public Speaking), Rawley Turner (Boys Prose Reading), and Jeff Brown (Spelling) were recipients of the second place awards.

The Math Department Outstanding Student Award was earned by David McNamee.

After being tapped for Honor Society membership, Jim Stone signs the Society's roll.

The Math Dept. Expands Program To Meet Space Age

Patrick Henry's Math Department has been recognized as modern and diversified. In the past two years the department has attempted to combine old, proven methods with new ideas. The math faculty feels that math is a systematic art which greatly contributes to a pupil's sense of logic and clear thinking. Therefore, the teachers tried to instill in each student an ability to think well through practice in mathematics. The city of Roanoke is a pacesetter in modern mathematical programs, and Patrick Henry has played a significant role in this modernization. Patrick Henry was one of the first schools in the nation to use Programmed learning material. This plan, created by Encyclopedia Britannica and developed by Hollins College, capitalizes on repetition to further the learning processes. This method is more expensive to the school than the conventional, but the math magistrates think it is worthwhile. At Patrick Henry the programmed math classes include two plane geometry classes, two algebra II classes, one algebra I class, and one general math class. Almost 1,100 of the 1,250 students were registered in at least one math course the past year. On March 14th, 260 students from Patrick Henry took a difficult national test sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America.

Much of the up-to-date math equipment used at Patrick Henry is supplied by funds from the National Defense Education Act. This equipment includes geometric figures, slide rules, and films. Progressive education has been the key-note of the Math Department, and with this modernization, the Department has achieved its aim of building the thinking power of each student.

Mrs. Anne, Stone, Jimmy Stone, and Eddie Natt compare mathematics books, published in Ireland in 1784, with today's method of teaching. These early books are "designed chiefly for the use of schoolmasters, and assistance of such as are deprived of the advantage of a teacher . . ." This same self-teaching idea is the underlying principle of our modern programmed materials in use in the mathematics department today.

Miss Berta M. Hartman, B.S., Radford College; M.Ed., University of Virginia, Chairman of the Math Department, Geometry, algebra.

Mr. Don Bartol, Dean, Parsons Hall, Algebra, B.S., M.Ed. University of Scranton.

Mr. James W. Bishop, Director of Guidance, mathematics, B.S., Roanoke College; M.Ed., University of Virginia.

Mr. Lee S. Fracker, Math, algebra, A.B., Roanoke College; M.Ed., University of Virginia, Freshman Basketball Coach.

Miss Geraldine E. Ludwick, Geometry, algebra, B.S., Longwood College, Advisor Y-Teens.

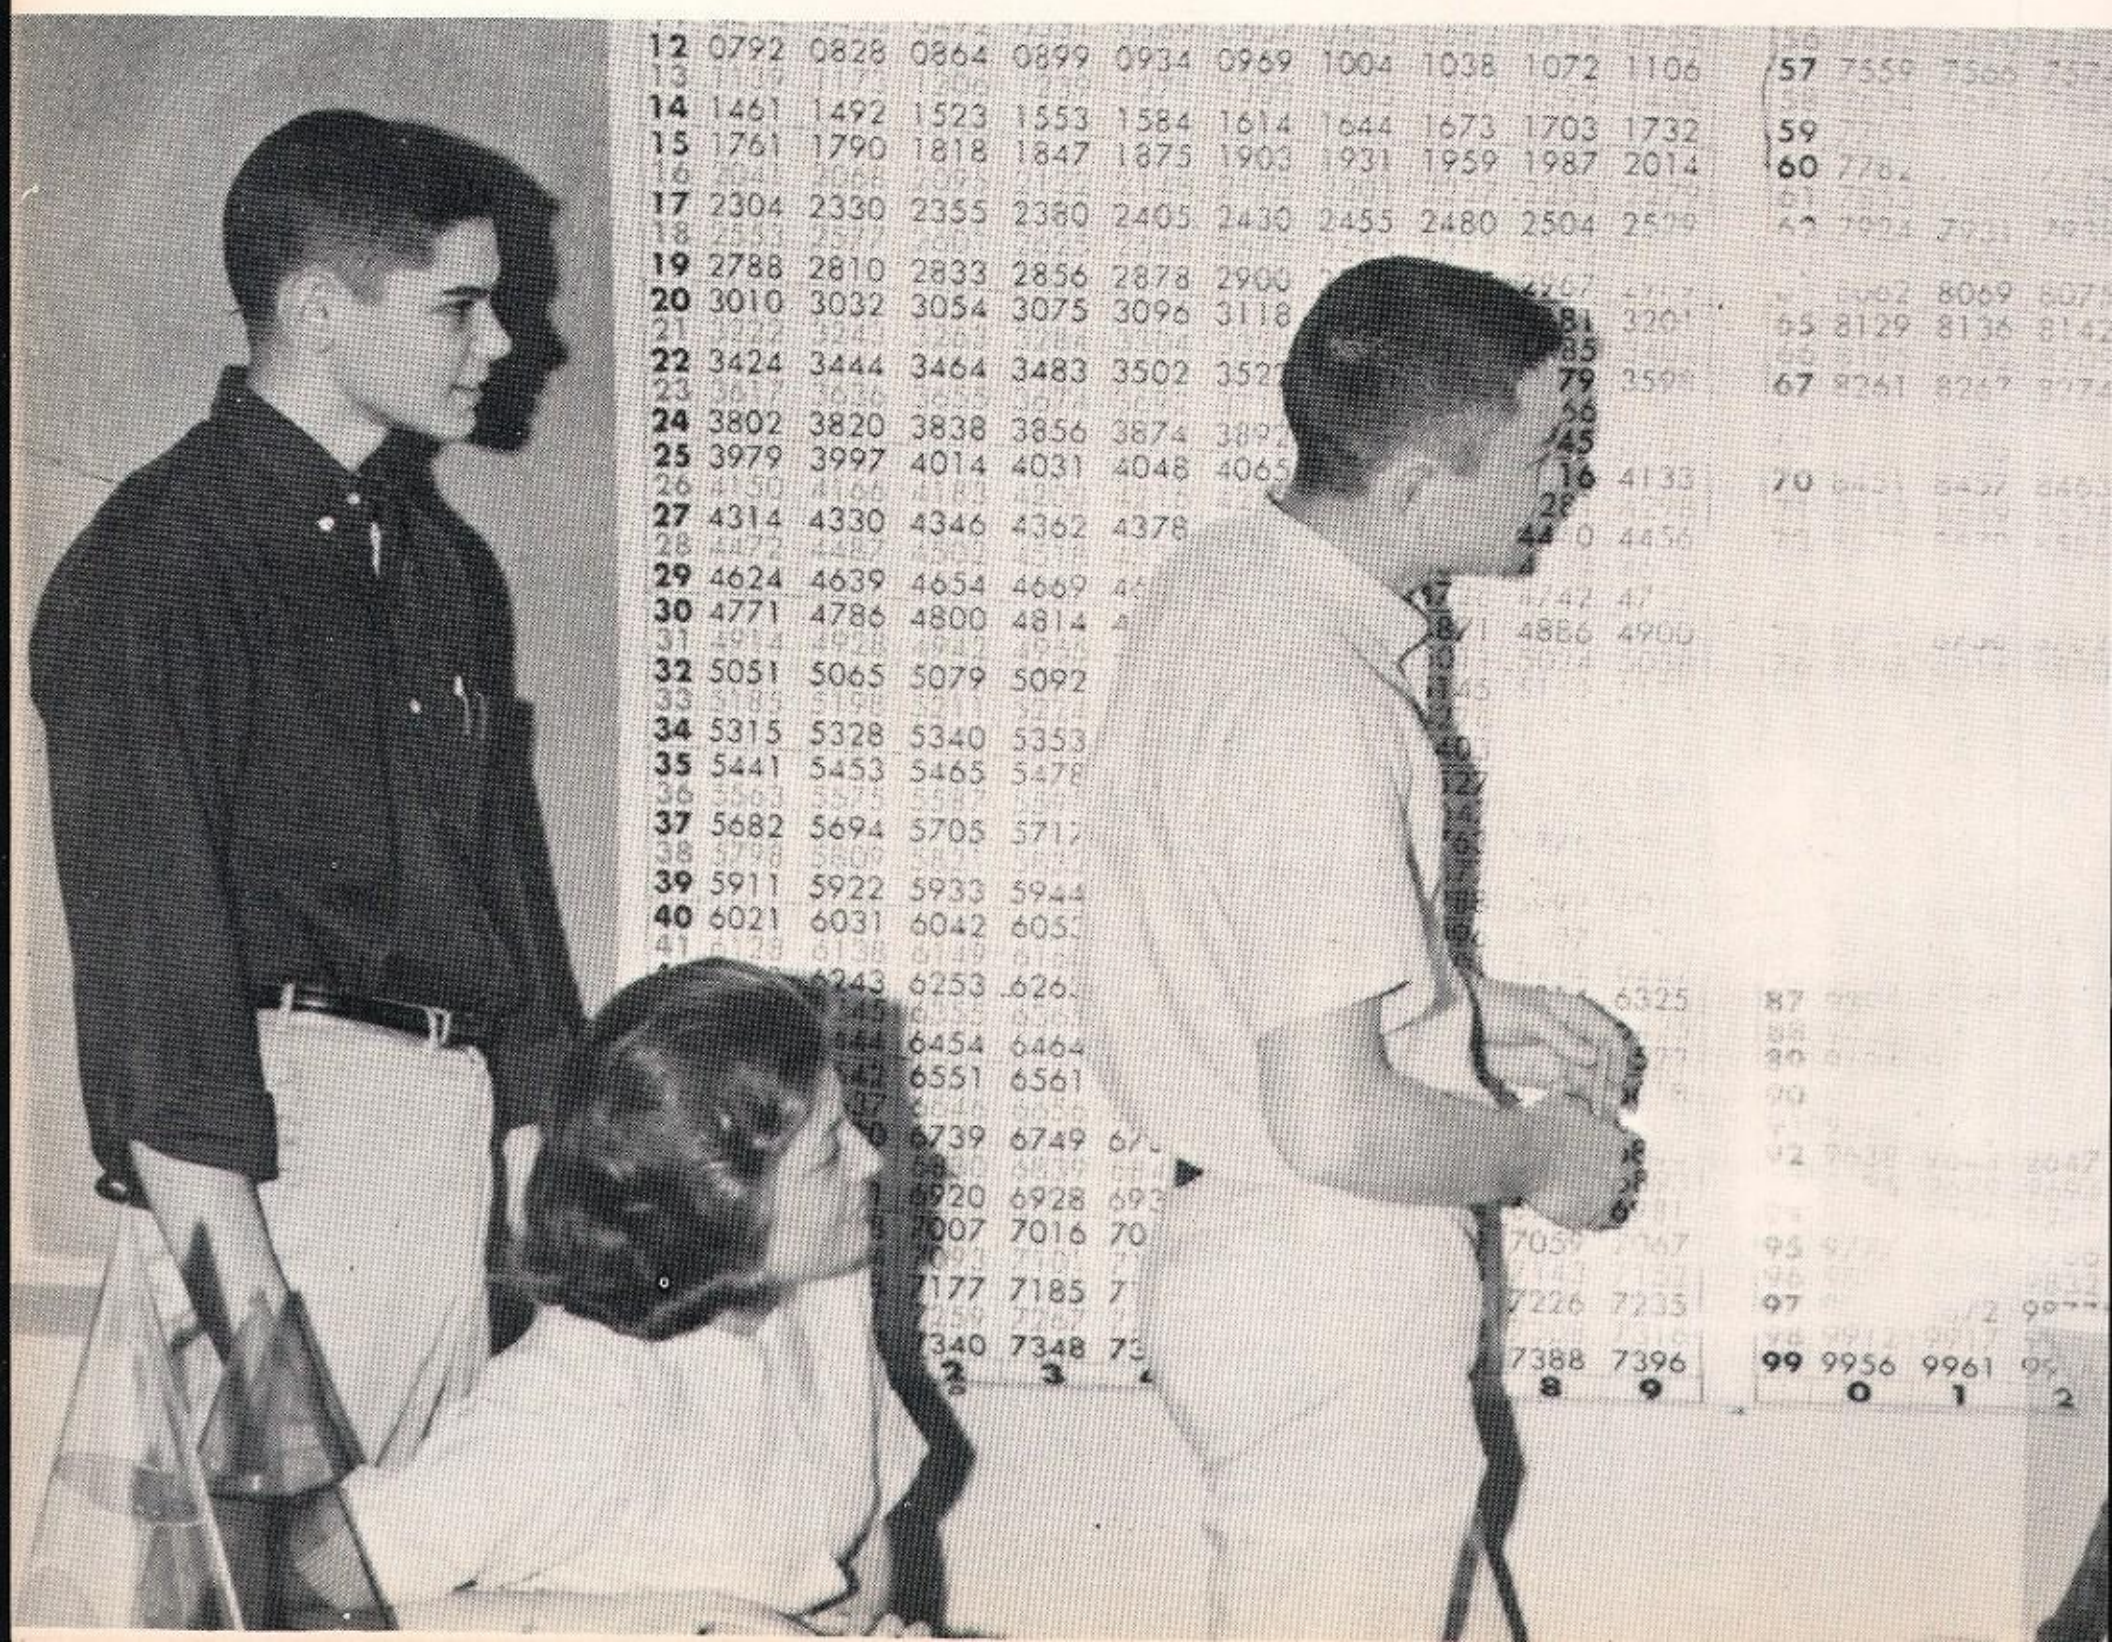

Mrs. Madelyn Singer, Algebra, geometry, B.A., Brooklyn College; M.A., Columbia University.

Mrs. Anne M. Stone, Geometry, trigonometry, B.A., William and Mary College.

Mrs. Florence Stump, Algebra, B.A., William and Mary College, Freshman Class Advisor, Future Teachers of America.

Mrs. Stump makes use of logarithmic tables in illustrating a point to students Charles Perkins, Judy Davis, James Meador, and Mimi Hoffman.

The Science Spotlight Focuses On Team-Teaching

Patrick Henry has one of the most modern and well-equipped science curricula in this area. The initiation of team-teaching, and the assignment of individual research projects spotlighted this second year's scientific endeavors.

A Freshman course in physical science consisted of a series of lectures and demonstrations, alternately prepared by Mrs. Kay Shepherd and Mr. Ben Taylor, along with guest lecturers who were invited to share their knowledge with the group. A brief analysis of chemistry and elementary physics was undertaken in this first successful team-teaching episode.

Under the guidance of Miss Frances Cooper most of this year's chemistry students were assigned individual research projects upon which much time was spent both in laboratory experimentation and scientific study.

Mr. J. N. Harker, Jr., Physics, Business Arithmetic, Basic Math, A.B., Lynchburg College; M.A., George Peabody College, Chairman of Science Department.

Miss Frances J. Cooper, Chemistry, B.S., Flora MacDonald College; M.A., Columbia University.

Mrs. Nancy S. Dikerson, Biology, B.S., Concord College.

Miss Margaret Anne Martin, Biology, Guidance, A.B., Concord College; M.A., Marshall College.

Mrs. Mary G. Shepard, Chemistry, Biology, Physical Science, B.S., Duke University.

Mr. Benjamin L. Taylor, Jr., Dean, Persinger Hall, General Science, English, B.S., Hampden-Sydney College; M.Ed., V.P.I.

Miss Bettye Carolyn Via, Biology, B.S., Roanoke College; M.S., V.P.I.

The Patrick Henry Science Department has many plans for expansion which are to be executed in the near future. A nursing chemistry course is now being proposed to afford those students interested in a nursing career an opportunity for specialization. The curriculum for a second year chemistry course is also being prepared for those pupils wishing advanced high school chemistry.

Several summer science institutes in the Roanoke area are available to Patrick Henry rising juniors and seniors. Under the direction of the National Science Foundation, these programs are designed to provide advanced work for those particularly interested in the specialized fields of modern science. Two programs at William Fleming High School in atomic physics and nuclear engineering and electronics are offered. These courses provide lectures, field trips, and experimentation for the forty promising students selected from applicants in all fifty states.

Joanna Cornett displays her project on "Plant Auxins Work Magic", which won second place in city-county and regional science fair competition.

Jimmy Stone receives the Outstanding Science Student medal from Mr. Harker, chairman of the department.

Scientific Merit Is Rewarded

Bill Teveri figures that band practice will just have to wait while he checks in on Astronaut Cooper's seventh orbit.

ground she displays her collection of pictures of Solothurn, her home town.

Languages Stimulate International Awareness

Miss Edith Shanks, B.S., Longwood College; M.Ed., University of Virginia, Chairman of Language Department, Advisor Senior Class, Latin Club, and The Orator.

Mrs. Nettie O. Bowles, English, Latin, B.A., Roanoke College, Advisor Latin Club.

Miss Miriam Bowman, Spanish, B.A., Bridgewater College; M.A., Western Reserve College, Advisor Spanish Club.

Mrs. Henriette Fallwell, French, B.S., Roanoke College; Advisor French Club (Marianne), French Newspaper, Quill and Scroll.

Mr. Beverley V. Michel, Jr., French, B.A., M.Ed., University of Virginia, Advisor Liberal Arts Club, French Club.

Mrs. Natalie Petersen, Russian, Bartas-hoff College, Tientsin, China, University of Virginia, Roanoke Branch.

Miss Velva J. Wood, Spanish, B.A., Radford College, Advisor Spanish Club, Student Government Association.

Spanish and Latin students consult their dictionaries for the origin of words.

Madame Fallwell and Anne Friedman, her student teacher, check the day's vocabulary drill.

Languages play an important part in the curriculum at Patrick Henry. Knowledge of a language helps to prepare one for the future and to promote a better understanding of the peoples of foreign countries. Offering two years of Russian, three years of French, four years of Spanish, and four years of Latin, the language department has a busy schedule. The modern foreign language class becomes a "lab" integrating the oral, aural and written aspects of the particular language being studied in preparation for practical use in future business or travel. Through its two-fold linguistic and cultural objectives, the Latin Department as well as the French, Spanish, and Russian Departments, seeks to develop an awareness of its language, to achieve a finer appreciation and understanding of English, Russian and the romance languages, and to provide a broader concept of our heritage from the past.

United States and Virginia History, American and Virginia Government, World History, and World Geography are the courses offered by Patrick Henry's History Department. For the benefit of the individual differences found in students, courses are offered on A and B levels. Emphasis is placed on a certain topic of current events each year. This year Freshmen and Sophomore classes emphasized Russian history and culture while Junior and Senior classes studied about Communism. Also, much time was taken to investigate the non-western cultures of the world, and the importance of local, state and national citizenship.

Many speakers visited classes, giving students fascinating views on topics from the Common Market, to missionary work in China, to Roanoke history. A study of weekly magazines added to class discussion. Next year, a course will be offered on the subject: Contemporary United States History.

Thus, students are given opportunity to select from numerous courses, giving them various types of historic knowledge while acquiring their three units of history required for graduation.

Mr. Gordon Clyde Macdonald, Instrumental Music, B.S., New England Conservatory of Music; M.M., Boston University.

The Fine Arts Department is divided into three very active sections. The art department is made up of elementary and advanced classes, both of which do a certain amount of drawing, painting, clay modeling, and wire construction. The advanced classes do more detailed work and have individual projects.

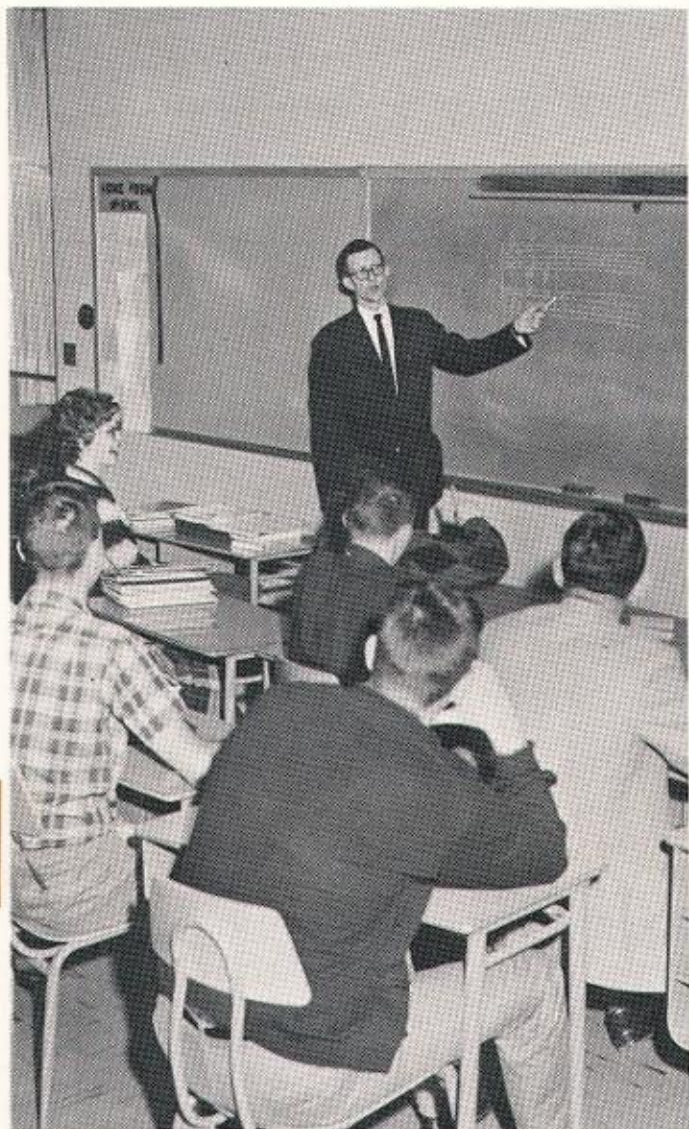

The Industrial Arts Department consists of mechanical drawing and shop classes. Geometric construction, lettering, and orthographic projection are taught in mechanical drawing, while wood carving, sanding, and cutting are taught in shop.

The largest section of the Fine Arts Department is the music department which includes band, choir, orchestra, and music theory classes. The band played throughout the year at athletic events, school assemblies, and on the concert stage. The choir classes were filled with vocalizing and practice, while the orchestra, although small, gave performances at school and in conjunction with the Roanoke Youth Symphony. Music theory class studied transposition, music history, and modern jazz.

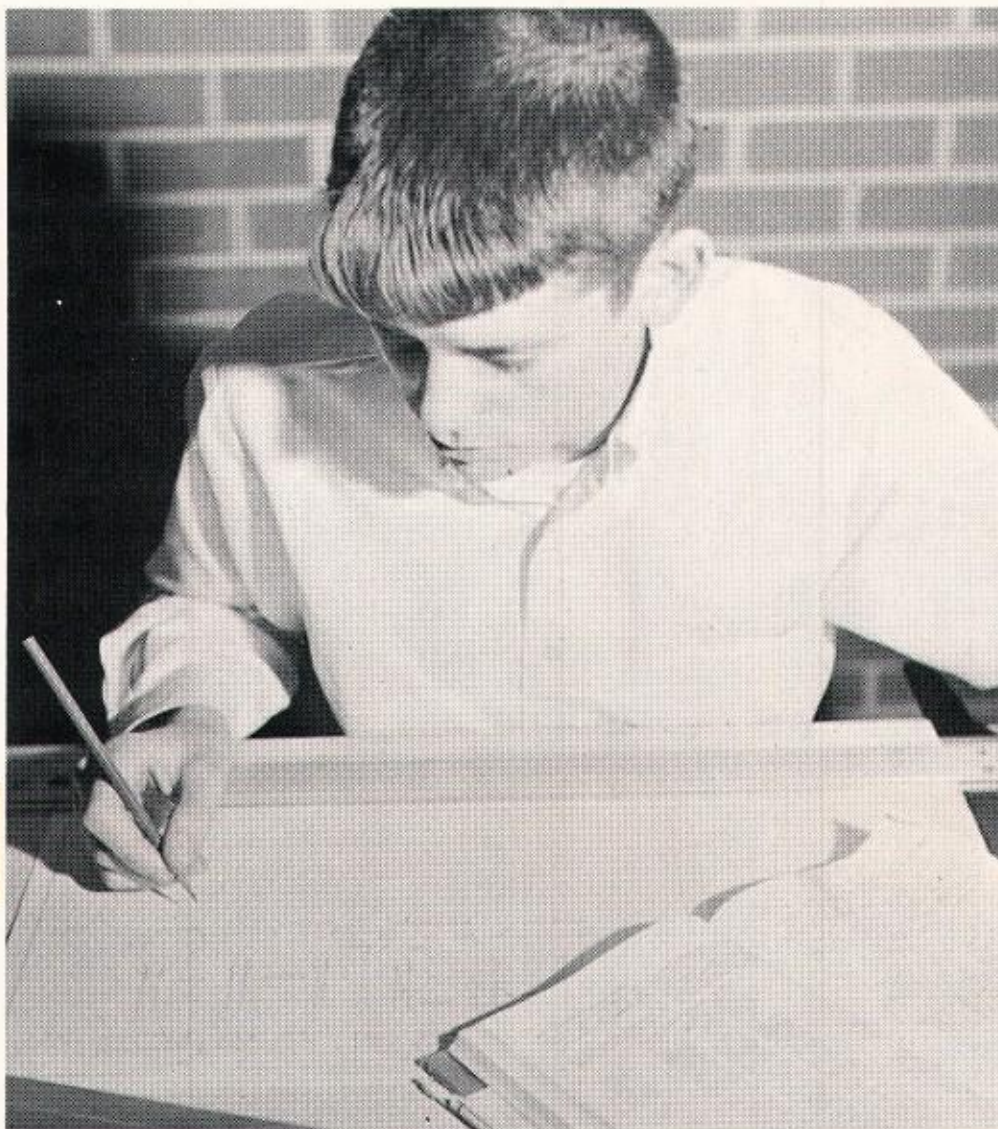

The Spring Serata . . . the one act production, Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil, was presented in the outdoor theater under the direction of Mr. James Ayers. It was produced by the combined efforts of the Fine Arts Department and will be an annual affair.

Pupils Find Jobs Through Training

Two entirely different departments, General Business and Distributive Education, combine to form the Business Department. In General Business the curriculum is divided into three categories: bookkeeping, stenographic, and general clerical. Courses are so designed for personal use, occupational use, and for those who plan to attend college. An in-service program has been set up so that business students can assist in the administrative department of the school. This gives first-hand experience to students interested in office work and prepares for good business inter-relationships that are necessary in business organization.

The Distributive Education program provides members with a means of learning vocational opportunities in the field of Distribution. Students are required to work part time in retail, wholesale, and service selling occupations. Classroom studies include distribution and merchandising as related to store organization; each student spends fifteen hours a week on the job training as well as attending regular classes at school.

Patrick Henry's library has shown evidence of its growth in the past year. The library has increased its number of books from approximately 6,350 to 8,100 and many more are on order. Every day the library has been filled—students seeking information and material for projects, themes, assignments, and term papers; some reading just for pleasure.

Patrick Henry pioneered a course in programmed Library Science, and sixty-six interested students participated. At the beginning of the course a diagnostic test was given by Hollins College. At home or during a free period, participants completed the fourteen chapter course. Upon completion they were given the same test a second time and the two test results were compared.

Boyd Nichols, Bill Waldrop, Carol Eubank, Connie Trumpeter, Ann Daniel, Judy Nichols, Suzanne Hopper, Frank Morris, Marty Hood, Joan Kaplan, and Nelson Thompson were library assistants.

Phys. Ed. Department Introduces New Sports

Along with the fundamental training of the mind, the Patrick Henry Physical Education Department believes that there must also come instruction in the physical, emotional, and social fields. Qualified instructions in dancing, dating, calisthenics, gymnastics, and other healthful activities helped to further the well-rounded educational program. The use of the new body building equipment such as the isometrical contraction bars, the peg-board, and the hanging ladder improved coordination and strength while stimulating student interest in the many activities of the Physical Education Department. After school, classroom teams competed in basketball and volleyball games.

Health course in prevention and cure of disease, first aid, and various health problems were included in the program.

Driving experience was offered to many students. After observing for seven class periods, the student himself drove for an equivalent length of time.

Among the many money making projects were Friday night hops and the giant physical education show. Using the theme "Frontiers in Fitness," the spring show was a tremendous success. Approximately four hundred students participated in gymnastic and tumbling exhibitions and many forms of dance. Included also, were the "Kennedy Family" and faculty skits. Profits of the show were used to buy softballs, badminton sets, uneven parallel bars, a trampolet, shuffle boards, archery sets, and table tennis equipment.

Co-educational days offered students an opportunity to learn new and old dances. Also, there were classroom discussions on controversial social problems.

Home Ec. Builds Interest At Home

Home Economics plays an important role in our educational system today. It is practical, interesting, and challenging. Since the home continues to be the foundation of our democratic way of life, home making has a very vital part to play in the lives of the students. Training is offered in foods and nutrition, child care and development, housing, home nursing, clothing and textiles, home management, and family relationships. The major goal at Patrick Henry this year was to help the individual student develop her potential abilities concerning the home.

The large groups of visitors who have toured our school found the Home Economics Department to be a spacious multi-purpose room divided into modern unit kitchens. Colorful exhibits, attractive bulletin boards, and the aroma of home cooking has transformed this department into a home-like setting.

Through training in Home Economics, many girls assume the responsibility of making their own clothing and that of other members of their family. With the large number of working mothers in our society today, many girls have also learned to prepare the evening meal for their family. This background will help them to be better home makers for the future.

School Staffs Are Kept Busy Night And Day

Patrick Henry High School, with its large enrollment, kept the custodial staff and cafeteria workers busy. The custodial staff, totaling 14, worked both day and night shifts to keep the grounds and buildings immaculate. The problems of the custodial staff were numerous, and included taking care of the three automatic-feed boilers and cleaning up cigarette butts in the smoking area.

There were also many responsibilities in the Patrick Henry cafeteria. Each day the cafeteria force prepared meals in a modern, stainless steel lab. These meals were distributed not only to hundreds of Patrick Henry students, but also to pupils in nearby elementary schools. Complete meals were packed and shipped in special containers to sixty-five students at Fishburn Park, 121 at Raleigh Court, and 136 at Fairview. The Patrick Henry cafeteria is proud of its part in this "Satellite-Feed" system, and visitors from various parts of the country come to view this Program and other up-to-date features of the cafeteria. The Patrick Henry custodial and cafeteria staffs were busy ones with modern means.

Proud Cheerleaders Boast "Patriots Great"

Patrick Henry's enthusiasm and spirit were boosted by its Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders. Pam Jones, Head Varsity Cheerleader, worked with the squad and planned important functions including pep assemblies.

Last summer Varsity Cheerleaders, sponsored by Mrs. Gravely, practiced every week working on new cheers and perfecting old ones. Also each member made posters to be hung before football and basketball games.

In December the Varsity squad entered the first Roanoke Valley cheerleading contest, sponsored by the DeMolay. The squad won first runner-up in competition with five area schools.

On April 20th newly chosen Varsity Cheerleaders attended a clinic at William Fleming High School. There they learned cheers and stunts to be introduced next year.

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders are Nancy Holcomb, Ellen Lichtman, Suzy McHan, Stephanie Shearer, Sarah Gibbons, Carol Grasty, Meredith Pollard, and Patty Pickard.

Football Future Very Bright

Patrick Henry completed its second football campaign early in November. The season was not a complete success, but many supporters felt that our domination of City-County football would be attained in the near future.

The coaching staff of the Patriots, headed by Charles Tucker, believe that they laid down a strong foundation on which to build teams. The coaches favored giving more people actual game experience, and the use of isometric contraction, a body-building technique, was initiated.

Tension mounts on the sidelines in the Cave Spring game as Managers Chris Oakey and John Hart look on anxiously. Ruben Terry and W. J. Blane make plans in the background for a later rally which brought a 28-0 victory for the Patriots.

The Patrick Henry Patriots in their season opener with Andrew Lewis were defeated 14-0. Later conflicts, however, brought Patrick Henry a welcome technical victory in this first game of the season.

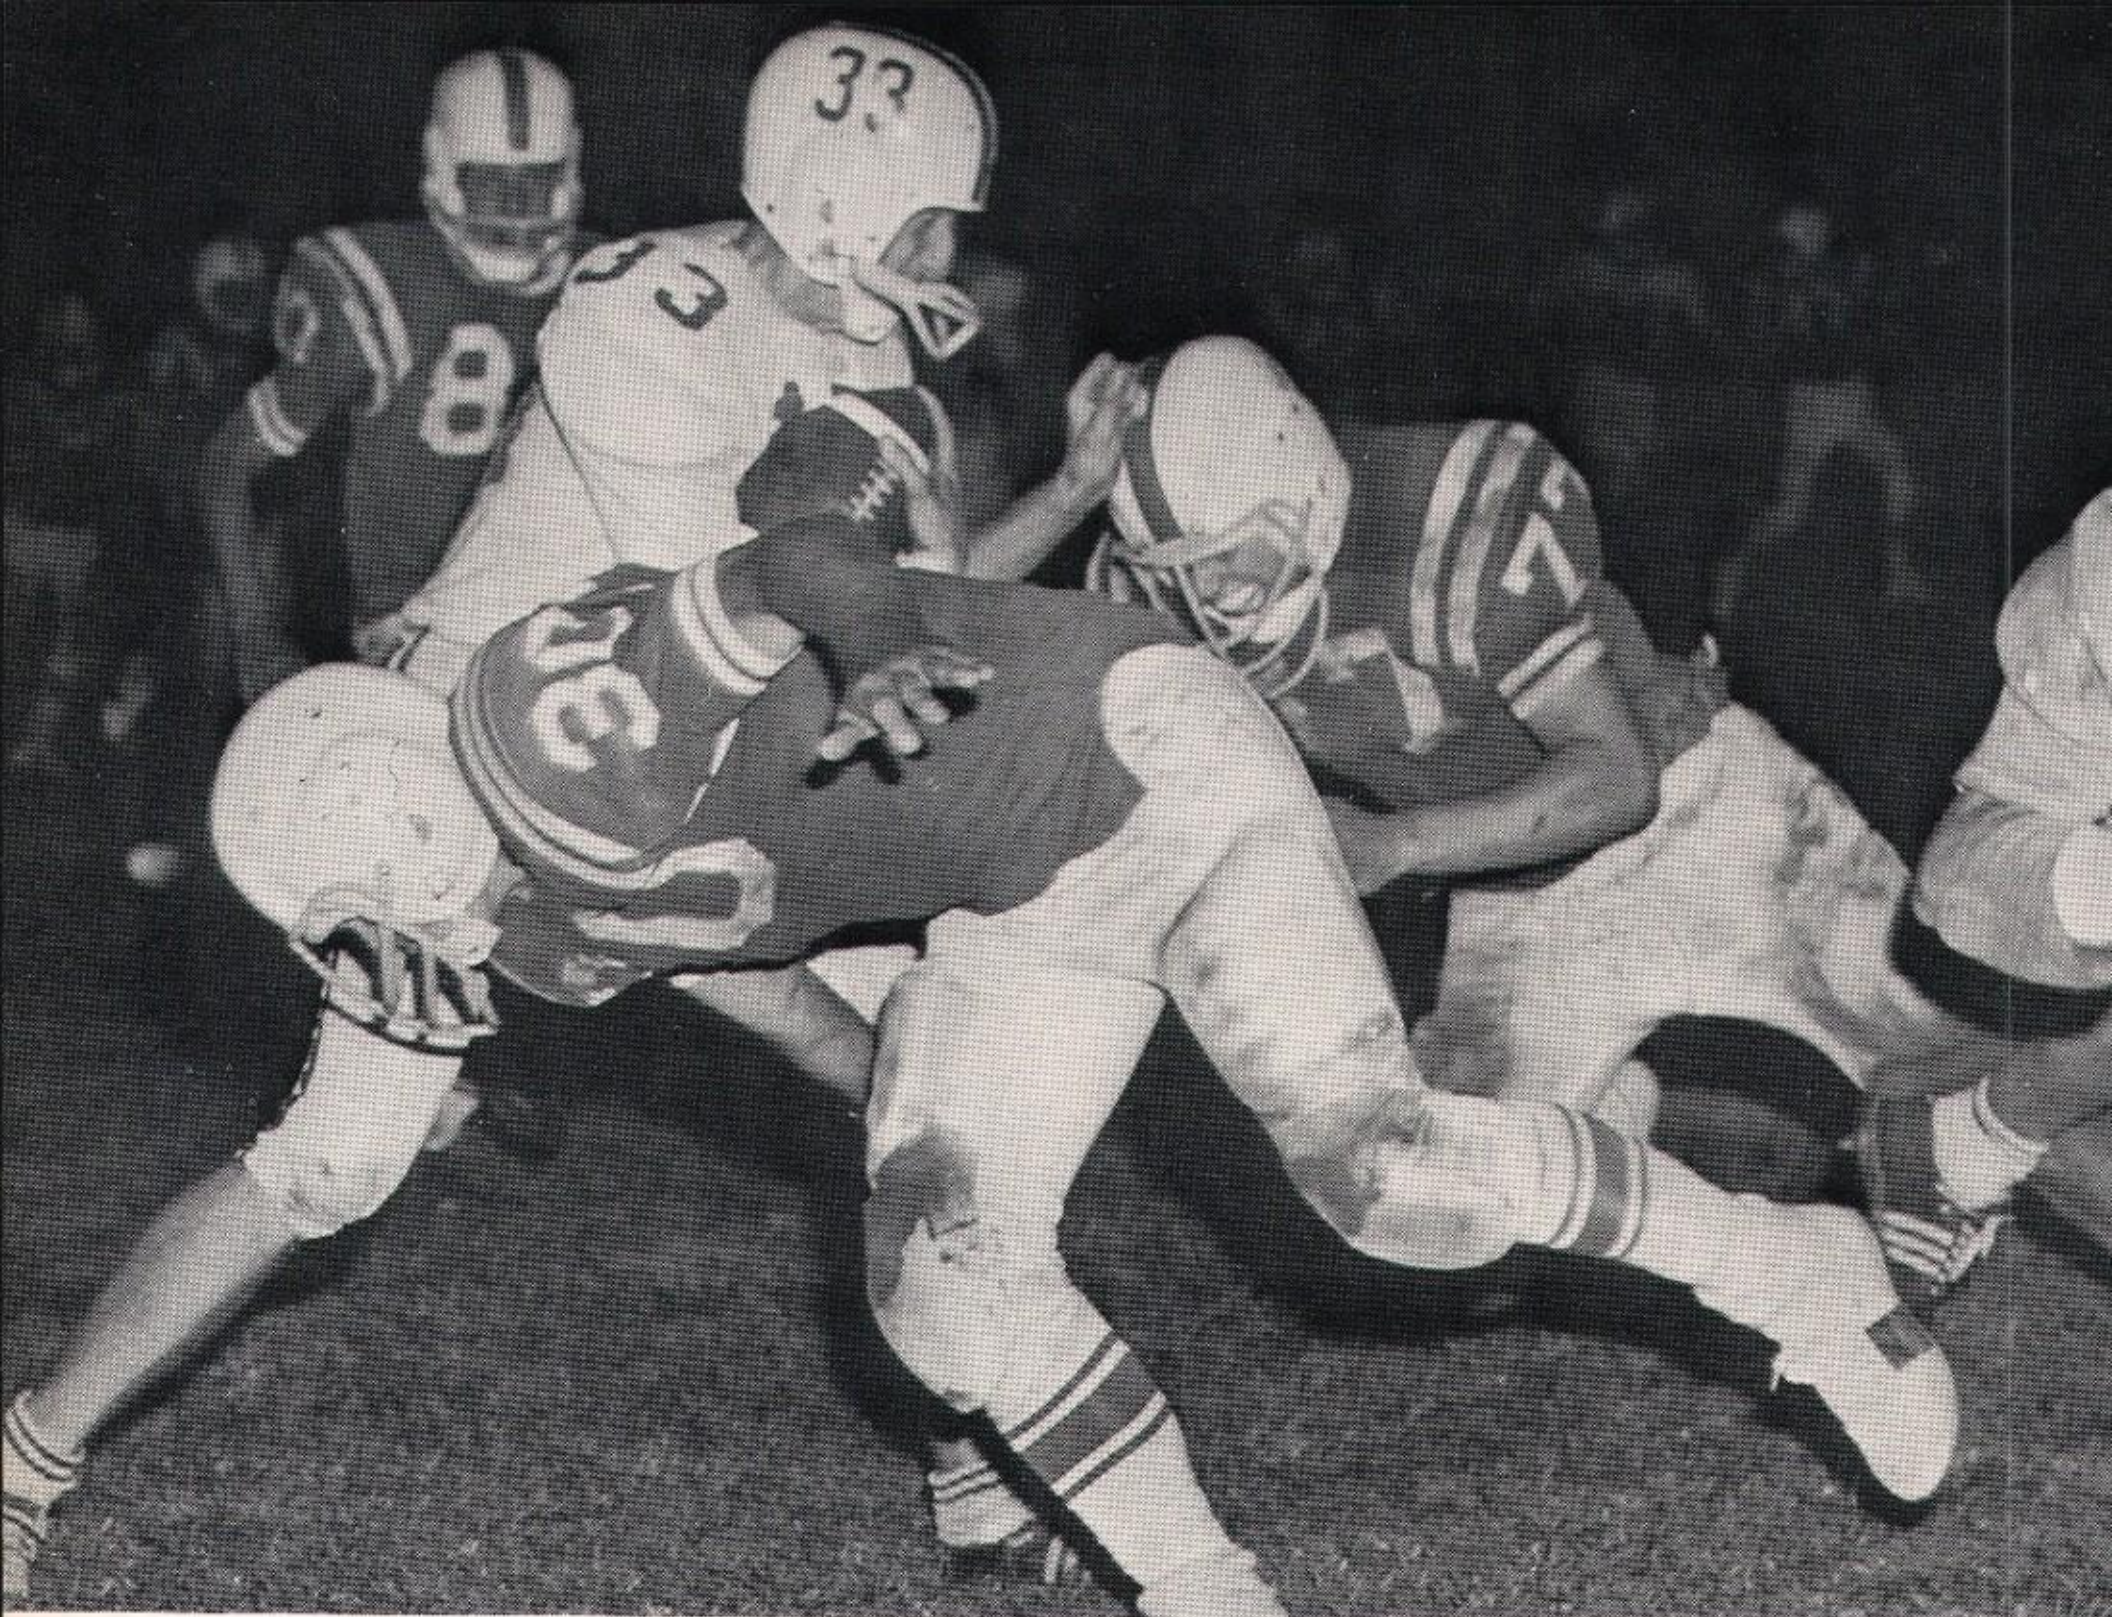

The next weekend arrived and spirit was high as the Patriots prepared for and won a hard-fought victory over Washington and Lee of Arlington, the number one ranked state team. Another victory (13-7) the next weekend over Jefferson Senior High School, the cross-town rival, seemed to insure a good record for the Patriots. But then the dread of many coaches was felt as the mid-season let down brought erratic play from the regulars.

A loss (13-6) to William Fleming, a win (28-0) from Cave Spring, and a tie (6-6) with Richlands took in the next three weeks, but then successive defeats at the hands of George Washington of Danville and E. C. Glass of Lynchburg hit the Patriots hard and the team's spirit lowered greatly.

A win the next week over Franklin County again raised the spirit of the players, but this came too late as Patrick Henry finished the season with a hard-fought but losing effort against the mighty Tazewell "Bulldogs".

The athletic department of Patrick Henry stressed the development of the three major high school sports—football, basketball, and baseball.

In the football department, headed by Coach Charles Tucker, several boys were recognized for special achievement. W. J. Blane and Dick Hodges received college scholarships, and also, with Dennis Brumburg and E. B. Snow, were awarded achievement trophies at the annual football banquet.

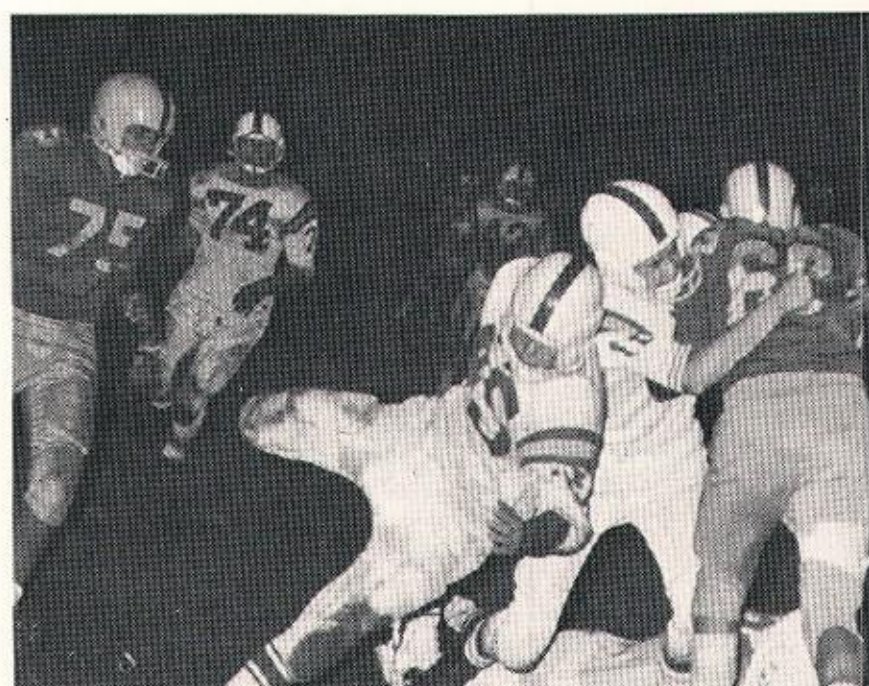

The basketball squad had one individual honor this year. Their team captain, David Price, was chosen the Most Valuable Player.

Chosen for the most Valuable Player Award in baseball this year was Ruben Terry. The entire squad was honored by receiving the runner-up trophy for the Western District Tournament.

This year's athletic efforts brought many trophies into the Patrick Henry showcases. Once again the spring sports revived the spirit and enthusiasm of the Patriot fans. The tennis team, led by two Freshmen, brought home runner-up honors in the state tournament. During the next week P.H. golfers easily won the City-County golf tournament. Later, after a hard fought loss to E. C. Glass, the baseball team received the second place trophy in the Western District tournament.

Injuries Hurt Cagers

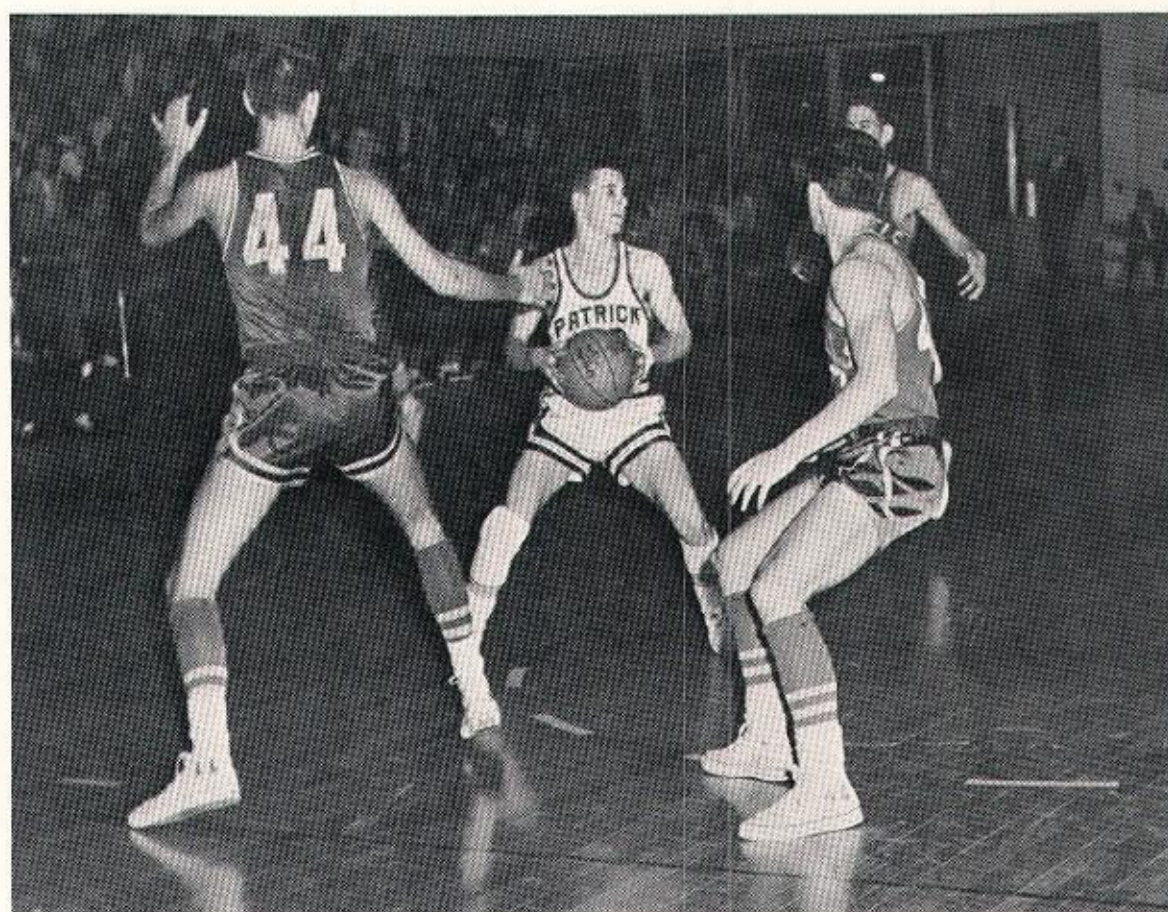

An opening pre-season loss to William Fleming seemed to foreshadow events to come as Mr. Len Mosser began his first season as coach of the Patrick Henry basketball team.

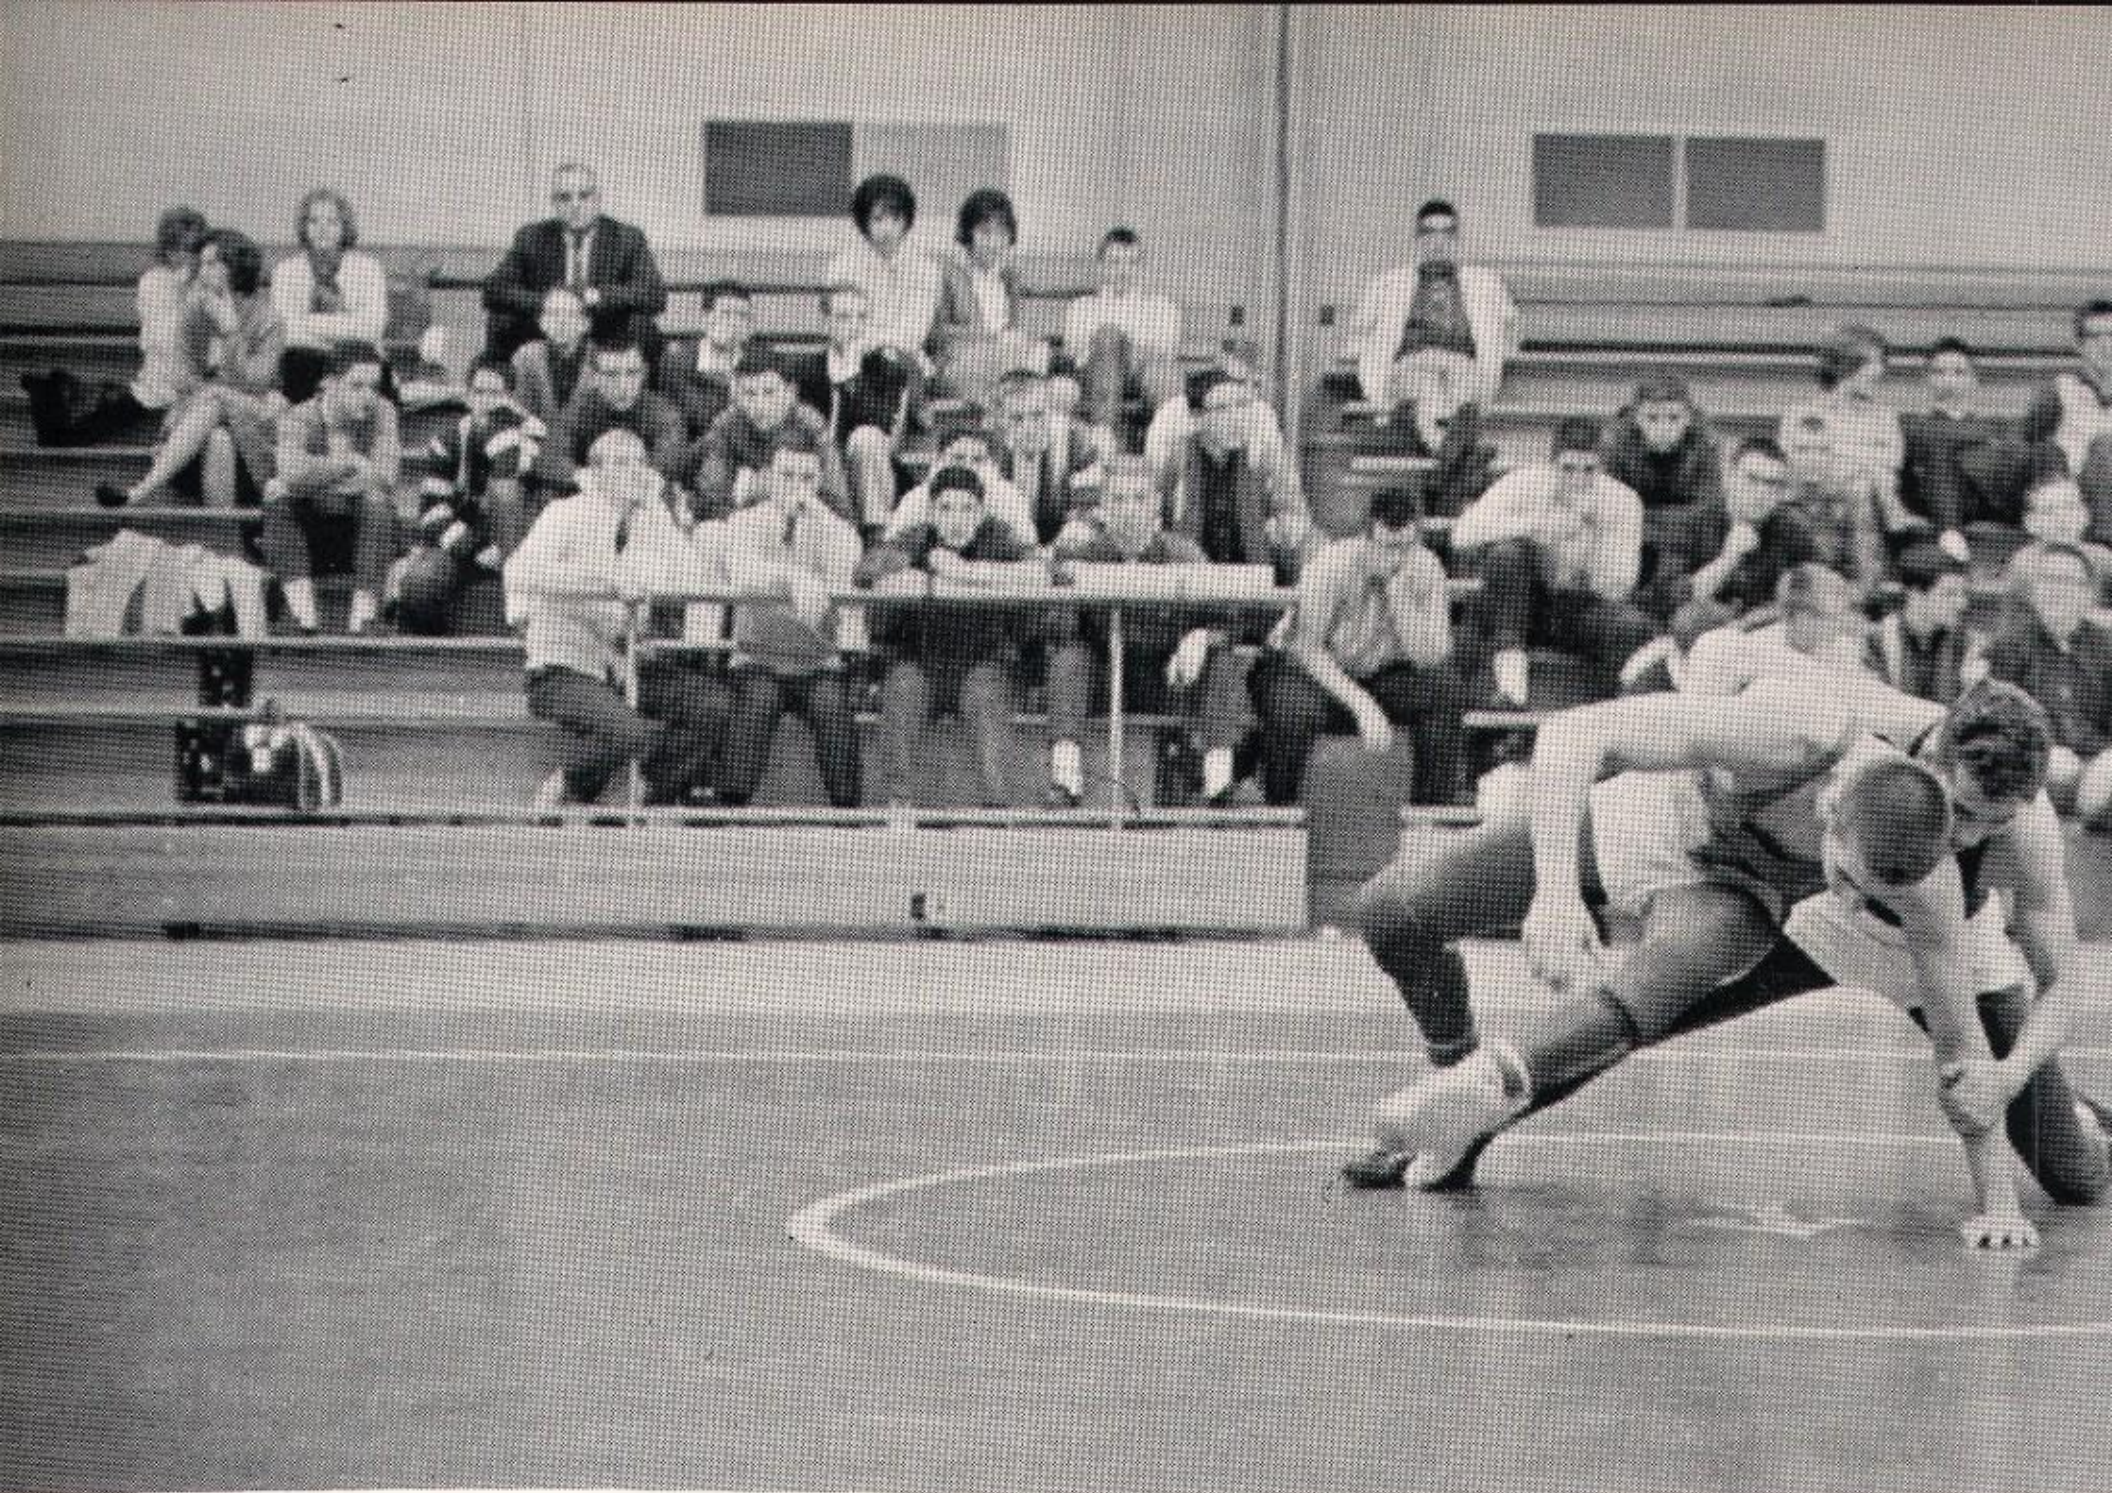

After much practicing and hard work in pre-season drills, the Patriots seemed ready to be top contenders in their league. Early injuries though cut down the Patriots' pre-season hopes, and spirit was dimmed even more after the loss of several close games.

The 18-game schedule was dotted with very hard teams that the Patriots fought with evenly to the end, but the loss of starters W. J. Blane and Mac MacClung hurt greatly.

The games the Patriots wanted to win this year were the games they won as the team scored two decisive victories over close-rival Jefferson High School. Other victories came over George Washington of Danville, Halifax, and Andrew Lewis of Salem.

Patriot Grapplers Show Strength And Stamina

Wrestling, a vigorous and exciting sport for the informed spectator, proved to be only a partial success this year at Patrick Henry. This was due to the scarcity of strong boys who had a working knowledge of wrestling fundamentals.

The wrestlers, coached by Mr. Leon Briggs, although compiling only a 3-6 record, pleased the student body with their first team victory over rival Jefferson High School. Other victories came over a strong Dublin team as well as the new Northside High School.

Seniors Bob Young, Bill Teveri, Benny Adkins, and Sophomore Mike Cubitt led the team in victories, but were aided by their fellow team members in the other weight classes.

Senior Lettermen Pace Thinclads '63 Season

The Patrick Henry track team, after the loss through graduation of four top track men, began this year with a group of seemingly inexperienced boys. By the time the season was over, however, the team had proved that it was a well-trained and seasoned unit.

This year must be considered as a building year for the Patriot track team, since coach Howard Light has stressed fundamentals and body building to his young squad. Back to help the "Light Brigade", which will lose only six seniors this year, will be Wes Owens in the pole vault and Preston Painter in the high jump. These two boys, as well as sprinter Russell Nelson and distance man Vaughn Richards, seem certain to help the Patriots next year in their quest for recognition in the Western District.

Western District Tournament

P.H.	10	Danville	1
P.H.	2	E. C. Glass	3

The Patrick Henry baseball team, by winning the Western District Tournament last year, was established as a strong favorite to repeat the honor this season. After gaining the finals, however, the Patriots were defeated 3-2 by E. C. Glass and had to settle for runner-up honors.

This year's season was filled with ups and downs for the team, as they would start a winning streak and gain momentum only to have it stopped by a dark-horse team. Even with this handicap, they did well enough to gain a top seat at the Western District Tournament and to establish an 11-6 record.

Experience was the key-word this year as the Patriots, who lost only one man from last year's squad, had veterans at every position.

Returning lettermen E. B. Snow, Ruben Terry, W. J. Blane, and Bob Young again swung the big bats for the Patriots. The pitching chores were handled by seniors Dave Price and Eddie Scruggs, and freshman Bob Slaughter.

P.H. Golfers Win City-County Tournament

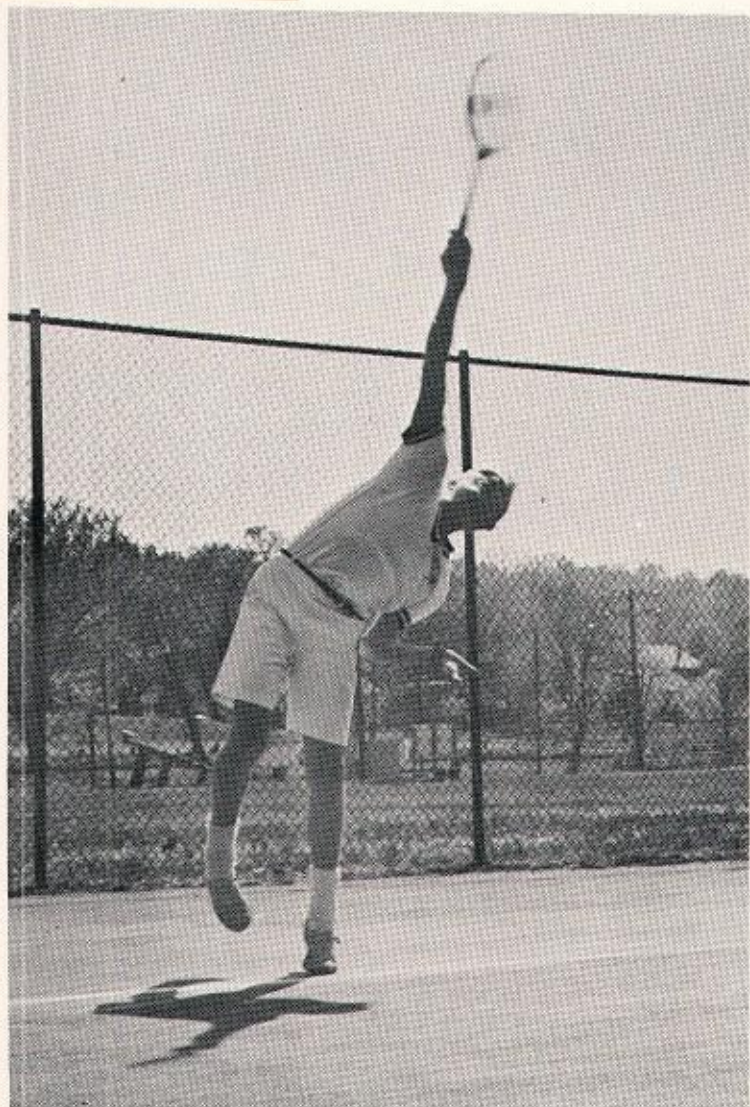

The Patrick Henry golf team takes it easy on the eighteenth green.

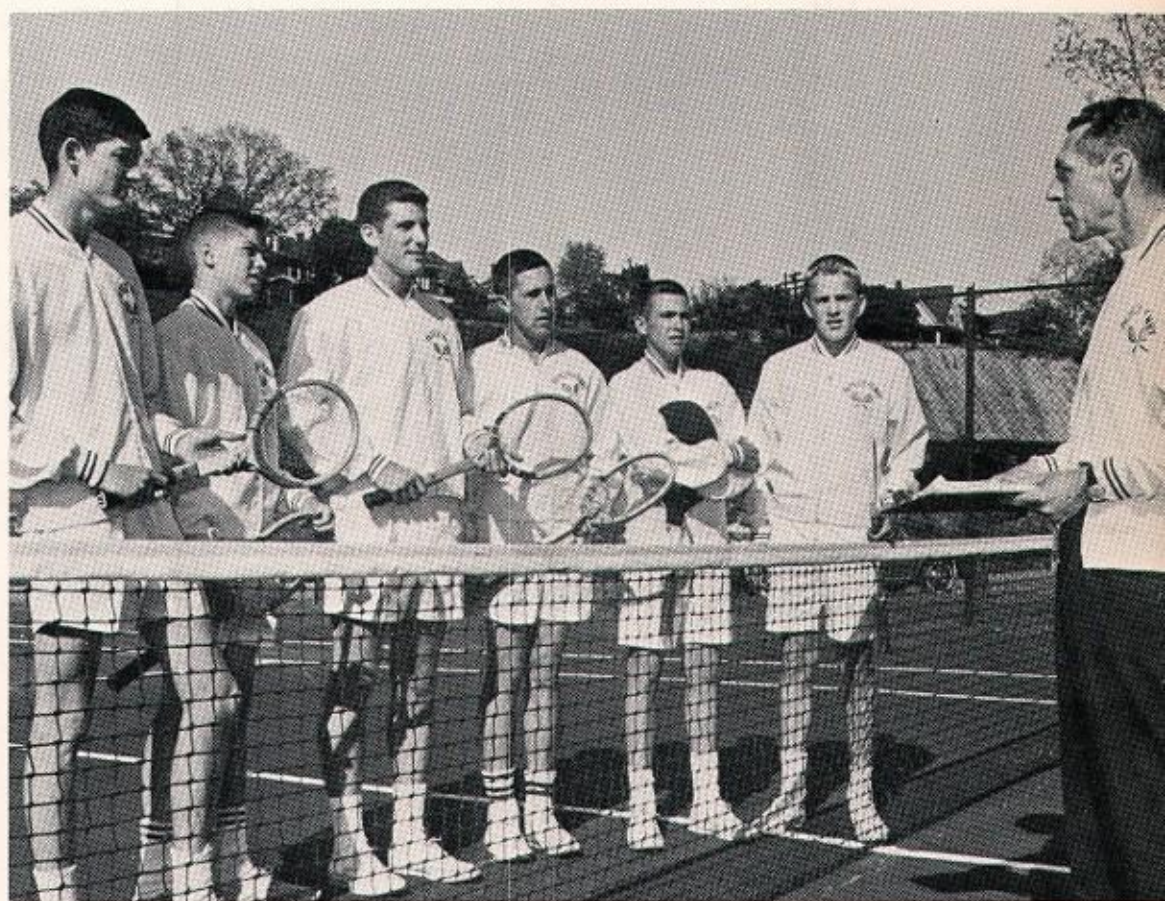

The six man Patrick Henry golf team began its season early in April with high hopes for a second consecutive undefeated season. These hopes were soon shattered, however, when the Roanoke Catholic golf team beat the Patriots 15-12 in a close match.

Not included in the season record of 7-1 was a decisive ten stroke victory over Roanoke Catholic and the other local golf teams in the first City-County tournament.

The Patriot coach, Al McClearn, kept ten men on the squad, but played his top six in the majority of the matches. These men were Dickie Reid, Taylor Roberts, David Hazelwood, Ricky West, Monty Montgomery, and Bob DeLong. Rounding out the squad were Richard Shepherd, Bill Nash, Bob Hudgins, and Steve Cassell.

Two Freshman Netmen Lead Undefeated Season

An undefeated regular season of the Patriot tennis team highlighted the Patrick Henry spring sports season this year. The strong six man team led by freshmen players Jackie Burrows and David Turner, beat nine state and local teams by considerable margins, thus compiling an unblemished 9-0 record.

A well-deserved trip to the state tournament in Charlottesville was won by the Patriots because of their fine showing this season, and they advanced strongly to the finals of the tournament before being beaten by a more experienced Suffolk team.

Burrows and Turner stood out as the best players for the team, but rounding out the well-balanced squad were Doug Haynie, Ed White, Horace Thomas, and Steve Shaffner, all of whom played an important role in the Patriot victories.

Wide Range Of Sports Is Offered To Many Girls

Throughout the year, girls competed in basketball, volleyball, softball, gymnastics, and tennis. Beginning in December, the Basketball Team, coached by Miss Noel, practiced at least an hour every day. This persistence proved to be well rewarded when the team became undefeated City Champions.

Mrs. Gravely coached the Volleyball Team which placed second in City-County competition. Members of the Softball Team, coached by Miss Noel, were Carol Johnson, Becky McClung, Vicki Ferguson, Cheryl Malone, Marcia McChery, Gayle Masterson, Linda Perdue, Darlene Shelor, Cathy Campbell, Mickey Mitchell, Lynn Bushkar, Barbara Little, Meredith Pollard, Shirley Huffman, Sandra Teveri, Janet Foster, Nugent Lemon, and Shirley Lawrence. With Jefferson, Cave Spring and Fleming, the Gymnastics Team, sponsored by Mrs. Patsel, competed in a meet held at Patrick Henry. Members of the Tennis Team were Mary Ann Moorman, Pat Mason, Ann Bush, Linda Perdue, Susan Stephenson, Cathy Crockett, Debbie Sullivan, Paula Partington, and Valinda Woods.

Spanish students direct their activities through the Spanish League which has a membership of 117 and is lead by the third and fourth year students.

Through the "common" language, Spanish students are able to make a contribution in the community to Spanish-speaking people who are trying to adjust themselves to living in America. Monthly programs promote Spanish culture, history, and civilization as they develop fellowship and friendship within the group. A Christmas "fiesta", an annual picnic, and a Senior Day cook-out are highlights on the Spanish Club calendar.

La Marianne Spotlights France

La Marianne, Patrick Henry's French club, is primarily concerned with the development of student interest in the French culture, the educational system and the social life in France. At monthly meetings students enjoyed films, discussions, and lectures presented by either native Frenchmen, or people who had spent time in France. Millie Zaech, Patrick Henry's foreign exchange student, spoke to the French club about her home and family life in Switzerland. At this meeting she was made an honorary member of La Marianne.

P.H. Latin Club Diligently Backs Classical Doings

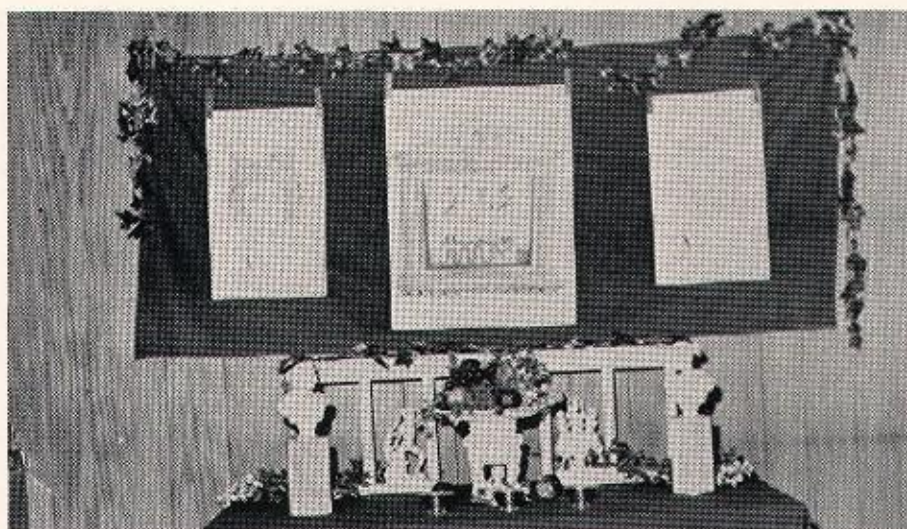

The Junior Classical League was very active in its second year. The J.C.L. or Latin Club, sponsored many events to entertain Latin students and publicize the Latin Department. The club, under the diligent sponsorship of Mrs. Nettie Bowles, endeavored to carry out its pledge to the national club of promoting Latin and classical civilizations.

Among the numerous activities of the J.C.L. were Latin Week, a Christmas party, and the Latin Banquet. During Latin Week there was a display of Roman objects, all Latin students wore Latin Week pins, and each day a famous Latin quotation was printed in the school notices. At the Latin Banquet on May 3rd, members of the Latin Department, other faculty members, and Latin students enjoyed a dinner in the Patrick Henry Cafetorium. Attire was ancient Roman, and the food was Latin flavored. At the regular meetings of the Latin Club, there were interesting programs. At some meetings these were games. These included Latin Password, Latin Bingo, and Latin Scrabble.

Interest in the Latin Club was very good, and membership was open to all. Everyone connected with the club tried to help develop an awareness of Latin as a language and to achieve a finer appreciation and understanding of the English and the Romance languages.

Officers of the Latin Club are Billy Harbour, Treasurer; Joan Kaplan, Secretary; Betty Mills, Vice President; and Rawley Turner, President.

This sacrificial altar, displayed at the Latin Banquet, simulates the altars used in ancient Rome. The table contains offerings of salt, fruit, and wine for the household gods.

Orator Promotes Old, Animated Language

The Latin newspaper, Orator, is one of the five publications at Patrick Henry. In a very short time the paper has established itself as an important component of Patrick Henry's literary efforts. In only its second year Orator received a First Place in the Columbia Press Association ratings.

In 1962-63 three issues were published. The entire advanced Latin class was the staff, with Emily Gearhart, Editor; Mary Ann Atkins, Assistant Editor; and Geof Brown, Business Manager, directing the work. All the newspaper's work was done during the class period. Orator, considered a departmental publication, contained many articles written in Latin, but also English essays, editorials, and school news. Orator again achieved its aim of providing for Latin students good reading entertainment and excellent writing opportunities.

LA LIBERTE Furthers French Culture, Mind And Speech

"C'est magnificent!" These words accurately describe the continuous work the La Liberte staff has put into the newspaper. Everyday during fifth period, staff reporters met to write articles. Because all items were written in French, students must have had at least two years of French as prerequisite to staff membership. The yearly six editions of the paper contained numerous articles of interest, news features on historical and modern France, comments on school, city and national affairs, social events, and French jokes. The newspaper, headed by Co-editors Jean Blevins and Sharon Stephens, received a First Place award from the Columbia Press, proof of the hard work put into La Liberte.

At the April meeting of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association, Madame Henriette Fallwell, La Liberte sponsor, was the recipient of an honorary award. Her knowledge, hard work and the service she has given to promote a better French-American relationship made her well qualified.

Staff members Joan Craig, Jane Mastin, Cindy Leeds, Sarah Ross, Martha Maddoz, Sharon Stephens, Madame Fallwell, Jean Blevins, Jerry Hildebrand, and Rita Burroughs proof read the latest edition of La Liberte.

Liberal Arts Club Exercises Intellect

Think—this has been the motto of the Patrick Henry Liberal Arts Club. In its second year the Club has sponsored movies, discussions, and speakers. These highly enlightening activities were all intended to invigorate the minds of the club's members, to inspire them to contemplate matters overlooked by most high school students. This year's officers were Jonah Levin, president; Diane Race, vice-president; Gayle Waymack, treasurer; Chess Division Chairman, Joe Hawkins; Program Chairman, Tommy Waterman. This year the Chess Division of Liberal Arts Club was particularly active. The chess team had many intramural matches and in two matches with out-of-state schools, they broke even, winning one and losing one.

Officers of the Liberal Arts Club were Tommy Waterman, Gayle Waymack, Jonah Levin, Dianne Race, and Joe Hawkins.

Junior Red Cross Speaks Language Of Mercy

To interest all students in its work and activities has been the goal of the Junior Red Cross at Patrick Henry. Besides sending cookies, members of the Jr. Red Cross staged two talent shows for the Veterans Hospital. For Roanoke Hospitals, stuffed animals, magazines, and comic books were collected; and the Gray Lady Program promoted. The Junior Red Cross has influenced several Patrick Henry students to take 1963 summer jobs at Camp Easter Seal.

Officers of the Junior Red Cross were Sandra Howell, President; Bert Palmer, Vice President; and Barbara Adams, Secretary. Class representatives were Judy Nichols, Cindy Levin, Susan Montgomery, and Kathleen Grady.

The Statesman Unfolds History Of P.H.H.S.

In seventeen issues The Statesman recorded the 1962-63 history of Patrick Henry. The staff met sixth period every day. Every other Friday, Susan Crawford, editor-in-chief; Gail Oliver and Rusty Henley, feature editors; Dennis Brumberg, editorial editor; and Eddie Scruggs, sports editor planned assignments for the coming issue. On the following Friday, this assigned copy was handed in, checked, and frequently rewritten. Pages were made up the next Tuesday and Wednesday, then sent to the printer. The Statesman was proof-read by the entire staff a week later. All pictures were provided by the two staff photographers, Jimmy Leavitt and Eddie Lowenstein. Bobby Garland, Business Manager, was in charge of finances. Regular exchanges were made with other schools in the city, state, and country.

The staff of The Statesman was active in the Quill and Scroll Honor Society, and is a member of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association and the Columbia Press Association.

Patriot Gives A Complete Year's Record

Producing an accurate 1962-63 school year summary of words and pictures was the job of the Patriot yearbook staff. One innovation this year is "summer delivery" to make possible a better and more nearly complete year's record.

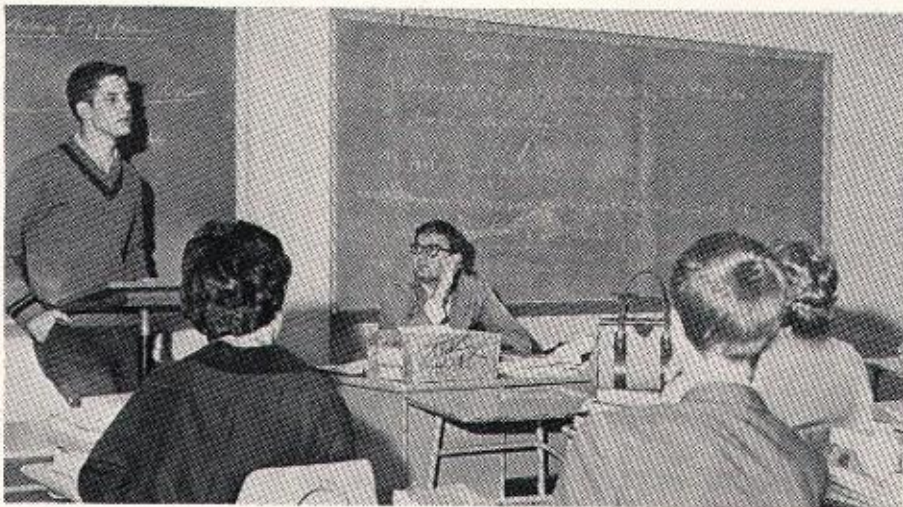

The Art staff, led by Art Editor and advised by Mrs. Shirlee Young, worked throughout the year preparing a "dummy", making book designs, laying out pages, cropping pictures, and fixing page sequence.

After layout plans had been made and remade, the Literary staff, with Mrs. Elisabeth Drewry as advisor, supervised picture taking, and wrote headlines, copy and captions. It was a treat to see people frantically typing, racking their brains for just the right word and almost pulling out their hair in the process. Bob Lorch was Literary Editor of this frenzied group. Mr. George Craybill was Business Manager.

The Patrick Henry Players Discover Talented Students

After the Dramatics Club was organized last year with its new sponsor, Mr. Ayers, excitement among the members grew as plans were made for a field trip to Richmond. At the state capital the club members saw "Caesar and Cleopatra" in the Virginia Museum Theatre and toured the museum.

During the year four plays were produced by The Patrick Henry Players, which became the official name of the club in 1963. The point requirement for Thespian membership was earned by the amount of work done on any of the plays. Last year the points were raised to 15, so that membership will become a greater honor.

At the final banquet officers for 1963-64 were elected and four acting awards were given. Four master technician awards were presented during the season.

Members of The Patrick Henry Players are S. Adams, C. Arrington, B. Ayres, J. Bailey, E. Barker, K. Bond, J. Buchanan, J. Carter, P. Carolyn, B. Davidson, K. Denson, H. Dixon, S. Etheridge, M. Fore, P. Fitch, B. Francis, D. Francis, D. Gaines, C. Gills, J. Grammer, R. Gustafson, R. Habek, H. Hardin, M. Hood, S. Hood, E. Jones, B. Kinzie, K. Karr, L. Langley, C. Leeds, C. Levin, J. Four plays headed The Patrick Henry Players' program last year. "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" in November and "Dark at the Top of the Stairs" in February showed the strides The Players had taken since their first year.

Early spring saw "Helena's Husband" prepared for the district and state forensic festivals. At district the play received a "superior" rating and at state, an "excellent."

Work!—The Password During Production Time

In cooperation with the art, choir and home ec departments, The Players produced the "Spring Serata" in the school amphitheatre in May. This was the first major production in the amphitheatre.

Acting awards were presented to Jo Sydensticker and Lauren Langley for their outstanding contribution in "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," Kit Bond for "Helena's Husband," and Rawley Turner for "The Doctor in Spite of Himself." Dave Francis attained the rank of "Best Thespian." Sherry Gullidge, Jo Sydenstricker, Dave Francis and Bobby Dillard were cited as "Master Technicians."

F.T.A.'ers Plan For Future Careers In Teaching

Officers of F.T.A. are Lucia Lionberger, Treasurer; Janet Miller, Secretary; Lenora Talley, Reporter; Brenda Ashley, Vice President; JoAnne Fulton, President.

The Future Teachers of America, a department of the Virginia Education Association, was set up to interest and inform students in the teaching profession. Activities of the year included talks by three student teachers on their college life and first experiences in teaching. The State F.T.A. Convention, meeting in December at Hotel Roanoke, gave members an insight into preparation for their careers as educators.

In February, Millie Zaech, Patrick Henry's foreign student, talked about education in Switzerland. April 29, Career Day, F.T.A. members visited six elementary schools, where they observed classroom activities and participated in actual teaching. A city-wide banquet was held in March and Patrick Henry's F.T.A. annual banquet was held in May. Miss Anne Bailey and Mrs. Florence Stump are sponsors of the F.T.A.

The members of the Future Teachers of America were: C. Arrington, B. Ashley, P. Baker, A. Bennett, M. Board, S. Caplan, P. Carolan, E. Clayton, A. Copenhagen, M. Cridlin, K. Crockett, A. Daniels, C. Deshields, A. Doss, S. Driscoll, C. Eubank, P. Fields, A. Frazier, J. A. Fulton, D. Gaines, C. Grasty, J. Gregory, P. Gwaltney, A. Haley, H. Hardin, L. Holdren, B. Hurst, M. Hutcheson, D. Jurgens, J. Wal-drop, K. Walker.

Officers Betty Hurst, Vice President; Linda Wahlberg, Treasurer; and Dianne McKendree, President, check activities for the coming spring.

F.H.A. Develops Maturity In Its Homemakers

Future Homemakers of America is a national organization that studies the ethics of good home-making. Through the F.H.A. girls learn to appreciate the beauty of a home and its surroundings, to strive for its betterment, and to find satisfaction in making their home a happy one. The F.H.A. encourages democracy and stimulates girls to play an active part in community affairs.

One enjoyable project last year was a joint meeting with Jefferson High School's F.H.A. In June the Patrick Henry Chapter was hostess to the State Future Homemaker's of America Convention.

1963 F.H.A. members were N. Alexander, B. Ayers, C. Bailey, J. Bailey, N. Britton, J. Brust, J. Butler, B. Byrd, C. Council, J. Crowley, D. Deans, J. Dodson, A. Doss, A. Foster, J. Glasgow, K. Grady, D. Hannabass, S. Hilderbrand, E. Hodges, B. Hurst, P. Kelley, B. Lendsey, J. Macy, B. Mason, S. McClure, S. McGarrell, D. McKendree, K. McKendree, M. McNeil, L. Noell, A. Paxton, P. Richardson, J. Tenell, S. Taylor, L. Wahlberg, B. Wallenborn, K. Walker, B. Weeks, L. Wright, J. Young, K. Young.

The 1962-63 Scrapbook is put together by officers Chip Deyerle, Reporter; Susan Bonesteel, Secretary; Sue Blackwood, Gloria Griffen, Treasurer; Bill Tinnell, President; Miss Margaret Hammack, Advisor; Clifford Christensen, Parliamentarian.

D.E. Clubbers Explore Distribution

Operating on local, state, and national level, Distributive Education Club members work on worthwhile projects and take part in various activities. This year the club gave two dances: The Great Pumpkin Dance in October, and The Ides of March Dance. Also Patrick Henry's chapter was host to the District Club Contest and Conference, members conducted a grocery shoppers survey, and attended an employee-employer banquet. Other activities included professional meetings with local merchants and businessmen as speakers, participation in a Leadership Conference in Richmond, and competition in Staunton in a state contest which produced for Patrick Henry two first place district winners.

Members this year were B. Argabright, M. Barbour, T. Baker, B. Boitnott, S. Blackwood, S. Bonesteel, B. Bryant, G. Carper, W. Crossgrove, G. Griffin, J. Custer, C. Deyerle, P. Frazer, O. Garrett, D. Johnson, H. King, P. Lehmberg, B. McCraw, R. Pleasants, D. Poff, E. Richardson, T. Roberts, J. Spencer, E. Stewart, B. Spain, B. Tinnell, J. Wimmer.

The Advisor of the Club is Miss Margaret Hammack.

Business Club Develops Future Leaders

Preparation of a year book was the main project of the Better Business Club this year. This was an entirely new project never before attempted, and was completed and issued only after hard work by a committee of members. It included the club's individual constitution, a schedule of planned events, identification of members, and a list of projects to be undertaken. Activities that the club took part in were tours, panel discussions, a pot luck supper for the parents, and service projects. Also members promoted good will within the Business Department by sponsoring a visitation day in the form of an Open House for those interested.

The 1963 members: L. Alexander, A. Ames, M. Barber, G. Barkley, M. K. Brown, K. Brugh, P. Chapman, S. Craighead, R. Crooke, A. Dinner, S. Duncan, P. Fidler, C. Holland, H. Kirby, S. Lawrence, M. LeSeuer, J. A. Musser, B. Nardi, N. Piper, W. Salyers, B. Scott, B. Scott, B. Shoemaker, F. Trywusch, L. Waggoner, J. Turner, S. Webster, S. Wilson, L. Wimmer, J. Coleman, J. Harris, and D. Nelson. The Club Advisors are Mrs. Violet Carter and Mrs. Caroline Barbee.

Officers are Helen Kirby, Recording Secretary; Pat Fidler, Treasurer; Bobbie Shoemaker, Corresponding Secretary; Lois Wimmer, Publicity Committee Chairman; Glenna Barkley, President; Clarke Holland, Vice President.

Helen Kirby, Diane Nelson, Bobbie Shoemaker, Barbara Scott, Jo Ann Musser, and Judy Harris count money after solicitation for the Heart Fund.

G.A.A. officers Becky McClung, Gayle Masterson, Cheryl Juergens, and Barbara Little count points earned toward the coveted G.A.A. pin.

G.A.A. Aims For Sportsmanship

In addition to participating in many phases of the Physical Education program, the Girls' Athletic Association promotes good scholarship, school spirit and sportsmanship. Girls' Basketball, Volleyball, Tennis and Softball teams were sponsored by the GAA. Other activities included a bowling day, talent show and a picnic. Members took part in various volleyball playdays with area schools. Eight girls traveled to Lynchburg for a District teachers' meet of track and field.

To make money, the G.A.A. sold football programs at home games, held a bake sale, and sponsored a homecoming hop in the Gym. Awards came as an outgrowth of student interest and participation in games, sports and other related activities. The pin, highest award, could be earned with an accumulation of 1,000 points, the letter with 750, and the shield with 500.

Members of the G.A.A. were J. Anderson, E. Barker, K. Bosserman, J. Buchanan, D. Burke, L. Bushkar, C. Campbell, C. Carter,

P. Carolan, K. Crouch, C. DeVaughn, K. Ellett, P. Fitch, L. George, L. Hancock, M. Hawkins, C. Hodges, D. Jarvinin, C. Johnson, M. Kelley, E. Kern, F. King, L. Lee, N. Lemon, B. Little, B. McClung, C. Malone, G. Masterson, P. Mason, M. Mitchell, C. Nolan, N. Norris, R. Ostwald, P. Partington, L. Perdue, M. Pollard, K. Ross, S. Schwartz, D. Shellor, C. Sumner, L. Waggoner, B. Waterman, V. Woods, and J. Young.

Patrick Henry Y-Teens are members of a nationally active organization, the Y.W.C.A. Their purpose is to promote individual growth in friendship, knowledge, and love of God. Throughout the year, the club has tried to fulfill its purpose by attending half-day conferences at the "Y", selling U. S. Saving Stamps, planning an Easter assembly, and making a lap robe for the Needlework Guild. Since all of the girls are members of the Y.W.C.A., they have an opportunity to work with other Y-Teens in the city. In activities such as a fashion show, a two-week summer camp, a State Conference, and a Fun Night the girls worked together to promote better understanding among different races and religions. Miss Geraldine Ludwick and Miss Anne Bailey are co-sponsors.

Members were M. Armentrout, B. Ayers, E. Barker, A. Bennett, N. Britton, J. Bush, E. Cayton, C. Coffey, P. Corlette, D. Cund, J. Davis, K. Denson, C. Deshields, C. Dollman, D. Dresler, S. Driscoll, C. Fields, S. Flora, S. Foster, S. Gibbons, C. Grasty, L. Harrell, J. Harris, S. Hart, S. Hetherington, A. Hiscox, C. Holland, N. Hylton, S. Kephart, J. Kerns, E. Lancaster, M. Lemon, L. Spangler, E. Stockman, L. Talley, C. Vaughn, L. Waggoner, L. Wahlberg, C. Walthall, B. Waterman, G. Waymack, S. Webster, L. Winstead, T. Woolwine, P. Wright, M. Young.

I. Spangler, Jr. Class Representative; G. Oliver, Vice President; L. Talley, Program Chairman; N. Britton, I.C.C. Representative; S. Webster, Sr. Class Representative; J. Miller, President; T. Woolwine, Treasurer; and B. Robertson, Secretary, plan the Easter assembly.

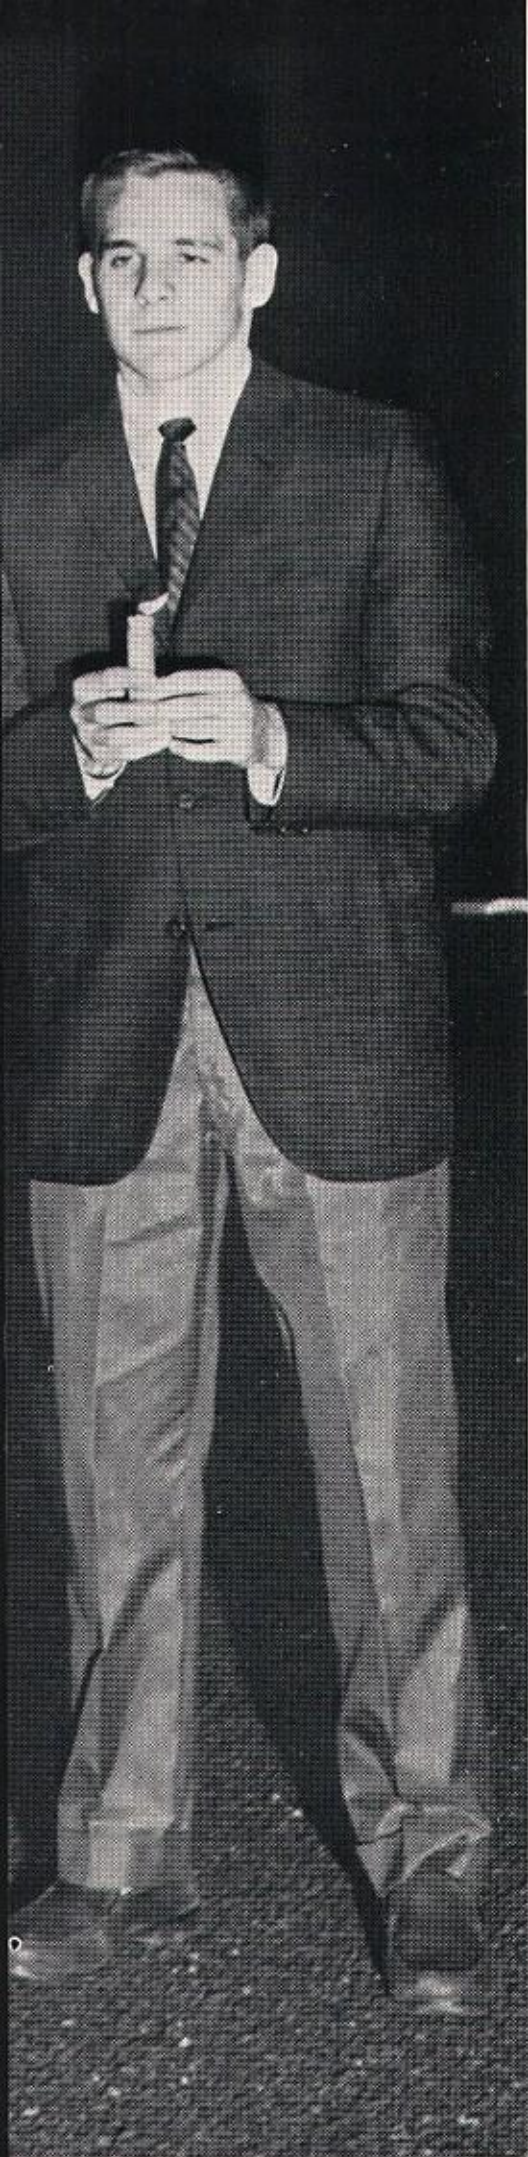

S. Turner, S. Gibbons, S. Foster, C. Deshields, and K. McKendree sell Saving Stamps every Tuesday as a yearly project.

Officers James Allen, Recording Secretary; Burt Palmer, Vice-President; Jack Mundy, President; Bertram Marshall, Treasurer; and Ben Adkins, Chaplain lead their fellow Hi-Y members in the rededication service.

Hi-Y Serves School And Community

Every other Wednesday night the Hi-Y met at the central YMCA. At each meeting the members were both entertained and informed by programs satisfying widely varied interests. Some of these included discussions on the new community hospital, the history of Roanoke, and the circus. In addition the boys were allowed to use YMCA recreational facilities such as the swimming pool, gymnasium equipment, and weight sets.

The Hi-Y being primarily a service organization, assisted both the school and community in all endeavors. Parking cars at Victory Stadium before each home football game was the first order of service for this year's Hi-Y'ers. Next the members entertained many under-privileged children at a Thanksgiving dinner. During the Christmas season the boys acted as clowns in the city Christmas Parade and delivered Christmas baskets which were prepared by each Patrick Henry homeroom. A rummage sale was conducted later in the year and all proceeds were donated to the Patrick Henry Field House Fund. The Hi-Y was also in charge of Easter Services as well as the blessing for each lunch period.

In concluding the year, 1963-64 officers were elected and installed at a picnic in Fishburn Park.

Members of the Hi-Y were: B. Adkins, J. Allen, B. Alvis, J. Bagby, J. Baker, J. Brown, G. Carden, J. Combs, B. Dabney, B. Dhue, C. Fidler, C. Fitch, D. Forbes, B. Fortune, D. Hancock, B. Hawkins, D. Haynie, R. Henley, J. Hilderbrand, B. Hodges, D. Hodges, C. Howell, J. Hurt, M. Johnston, R. Klink, B. Lorch, B. Marshall, R. Mastin, M. Montgomery, J. Mundy, E. Natt, C. Oakey, D. O'Neil, P. This year's president, Jack Mundy, and the newly-elected president for the 1963-64 term, Charles Fidler, are ready to load their baggage for the trip to Model General Assembly in Richmond.

Choir members mill around before lining up with other choirs in the 6 A.M. procession for the Easter Sunrise Service at Natural Bridge.

Officers are Jimmy Stone, Business Manager; Skip Cannady, President; Bob DeLong, Vice-President; Ranny Nichols, Treasurer; Kit Bond, Publicity Chairman, and Sandy Webster, Secretary.

A Heavy Schedule Keeps Choir Hard At Work

Under Mr. Robert M. Griffey's direction, the Patrick Henry Choir built up an extensive and exciting repertoire. Performing in the Publications Assembly, the Choir began a year of varied activities. For Thanksgiving, the group provided music for assemblies at Cave Spring and Patrick Henry. Before Christmas the Choir filled the halls with carols and participated in the Christmas assembly. Other performances during the season included programs for Roanoke Memorial Rehabilitation Center, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Crossroads Mall, and television shows on WDBJ and WSLs. A clinic was held at Northside High School on March 30th. Mr. Gilbert Schroff, the critic, gave helpful suggestions and complimented the Choir on its performance. At Easter the Choir participated in an exchange of concerts with Addison High. For the sunrise service at Natural Bridge, the combined choirs of Jefferson, William Fleming and Patrick Henry performed for thousands of worshippers. The annual spring concert was presented on April 19th, using the theme "April Showers of Song". On the following morning one and a fourth buses, loaded with choir members, embarked on a four day tour of Chattanooga, and the surrounding area. Senior members sang madrigals at the P. H. Spring Serata. For their last performances the Choir furnished music for the Baccalaureate and Commencement Exercises.

Elected to All West Chorus were sopranos Rita Burroughs, Margaret Cridlin; altos Janet Miller, Sandy Webster; tenors Kit Bond, Bertram Marshall; and basses Jimmy Stone and Buddy Nash.

Choir members: S. Driscoll, C. Dugan, J. Foster, B. Scruggs, L. Johnston, M. Hillen, M. Haynes, E. Cayton, S. Tomlinson, B. Buck, N. Holcomb, C. Woods, P. Pickard, S. Webster, T. Sutphin, G. Band Ends Year "At The End Of A Rainbow"

Whether the music was classical or "pops", the band could be found practicing in the music room every day sixth period. This group of musicians was always ready to provide music for school programs, creating proper atmosphere for assemblies, and churning up enthusiasm at football games. Long hard practice periods paid off: the band received a rating of Superior at District Festival; eleven individual players were chosen for All State Band; the dance band, playing at the Southeastern Regional Music Festival, achieved a rating of excellent. To encourage top performance, Mr. Burgess, band director, held frequent sectional try-outs to determine first chair positions. Funds raised by the gala April Concert were used to help finance the purchase of music and new instruments, and to underwrite the spring tour. In May the band toured West Virginia and the western part of Virginia. Through numerous and varied activities, this talented group has provided pleasure for itself and for others, encouraged music appreciation, and produced the opportunity for development of student talent.

Belles Strike Up With Band

Whether at football or basketball games, pep assemblies or parades, the band was supported by the Liberty Belles. These twenty-four marching girls became extremely proficient by practicing almost daily after school and working out new routines under the supervision of Mrs. Betty Jo Patsel. In May new "Belles" were chosen to replace out-moted senior ones.

Class Of '63 Initiates Senior Leadership Day

A successful Senior Leadership Day was initiated this year by the Senior Class. On March 29 many capable Seniors took over classes throughout the school, while others carried out the duties of administrative offices.

The day was opened with an assembly where the new student administrators were introduced and a presentation of corsages and boutonnières was made to the "real" faculty. The Senior teachers were recognized and classes began.

Excellent preparation had been made by all participating Seniors and classes were conducted professionally. Some students showed a knack for teaching and became interested in the field. Because of the success of this project it is to be carried on in the future.

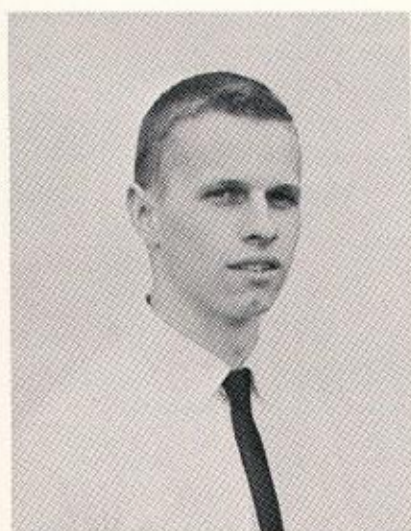

A corsage presentation is made by Alice Lynch to Miss Margaret Martin, Biology teacher and member of the guidance staff.

S.G.A. Coordinates Student Life And Activities

Patrick Henry's Student Government Association consists of a body of home room representatives, the House of Burgesses, and the Executive Council, made up of the school officers plus hall and class representatives.

This group, known as the S.G.A., opened the 1962-1963 year with a faculty tea and an Orientation Day for the new Freshmen. They sponsored the Homecoming Weekend, and the Christmas Dance, "Weihnachten—Holiday in the Alps", and also published the Student Directory.

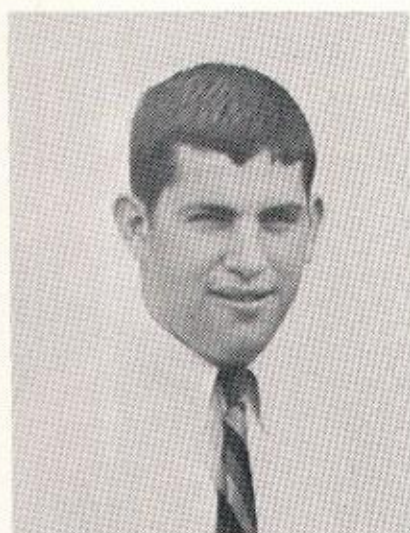

The S.G.A. donated a large brass "liberty" bell to the student body to be used at athletic events such as basketball or football games. In the spring a carnival was presented jointly with the sophomore class.

The organization participated actively in state and district conferences, sending delegates to two out-of-town meetings. Representatives to Girls' and Boys' State were sponsored by the S.G.A. The organization was a member of the City-County Council, a Roanoke area group designed to bring about better school relationships in the Valley by sponsoring inter-school functions. Patrick Henry served as Vice President in the C.C.C.

Playing a big role in the S.G.A. this year was Millie Zaech, the American Field Service Exchange Student from Switzerland, Millie fitted in well with the school and student life and gave excellent talks about European life.

Quenton Bondurant, President-elect of SGA for 1963-64 addresses members of the House of Burgesses, G. Douglas, N. Marshall, P. Cotton, J. Mundy, N. Stinson, E. Hall, C. Leeds, S. Spigel, J. Davis, M. Members of the Inter-club Association, Skip Cannady, Joe Levin, Carolyn Estes, Janet Miller and Robert Klink, met often to coordinate club activities.

M. Hoffman, S. Shaver, K. Akers, G. Hawkins, R. Shepherd, E. Adams, G. Taylor, N. Robertson, T. Kerfoot, A. Sacks, C. Estes, J. Harris, B. Palmer, B. Hodges, B. Weld, P. Carolan, E. Lichtman, B. Mitchell, B. Crawford, A. Sims, and B. Slaughter.

Jimmy Combs, Pete Shannon and Jackie Burroughs bring the S.G.A. bulletin board up to date with the organizations plans and official news.

Ricky Harvey helps Linda Woods type a page in the Student Directory while "Whitey" Richardson finds a student's address.

Bob Dhue, Mac McNulty and Johnny Light, decorators for the Christmas Dance, are caught in a playful moment.

Student's names and addresses are checked and double-checked by Jay Turner, Anne Copenhaver and Skip Cannady before sending the Student Directories to press.

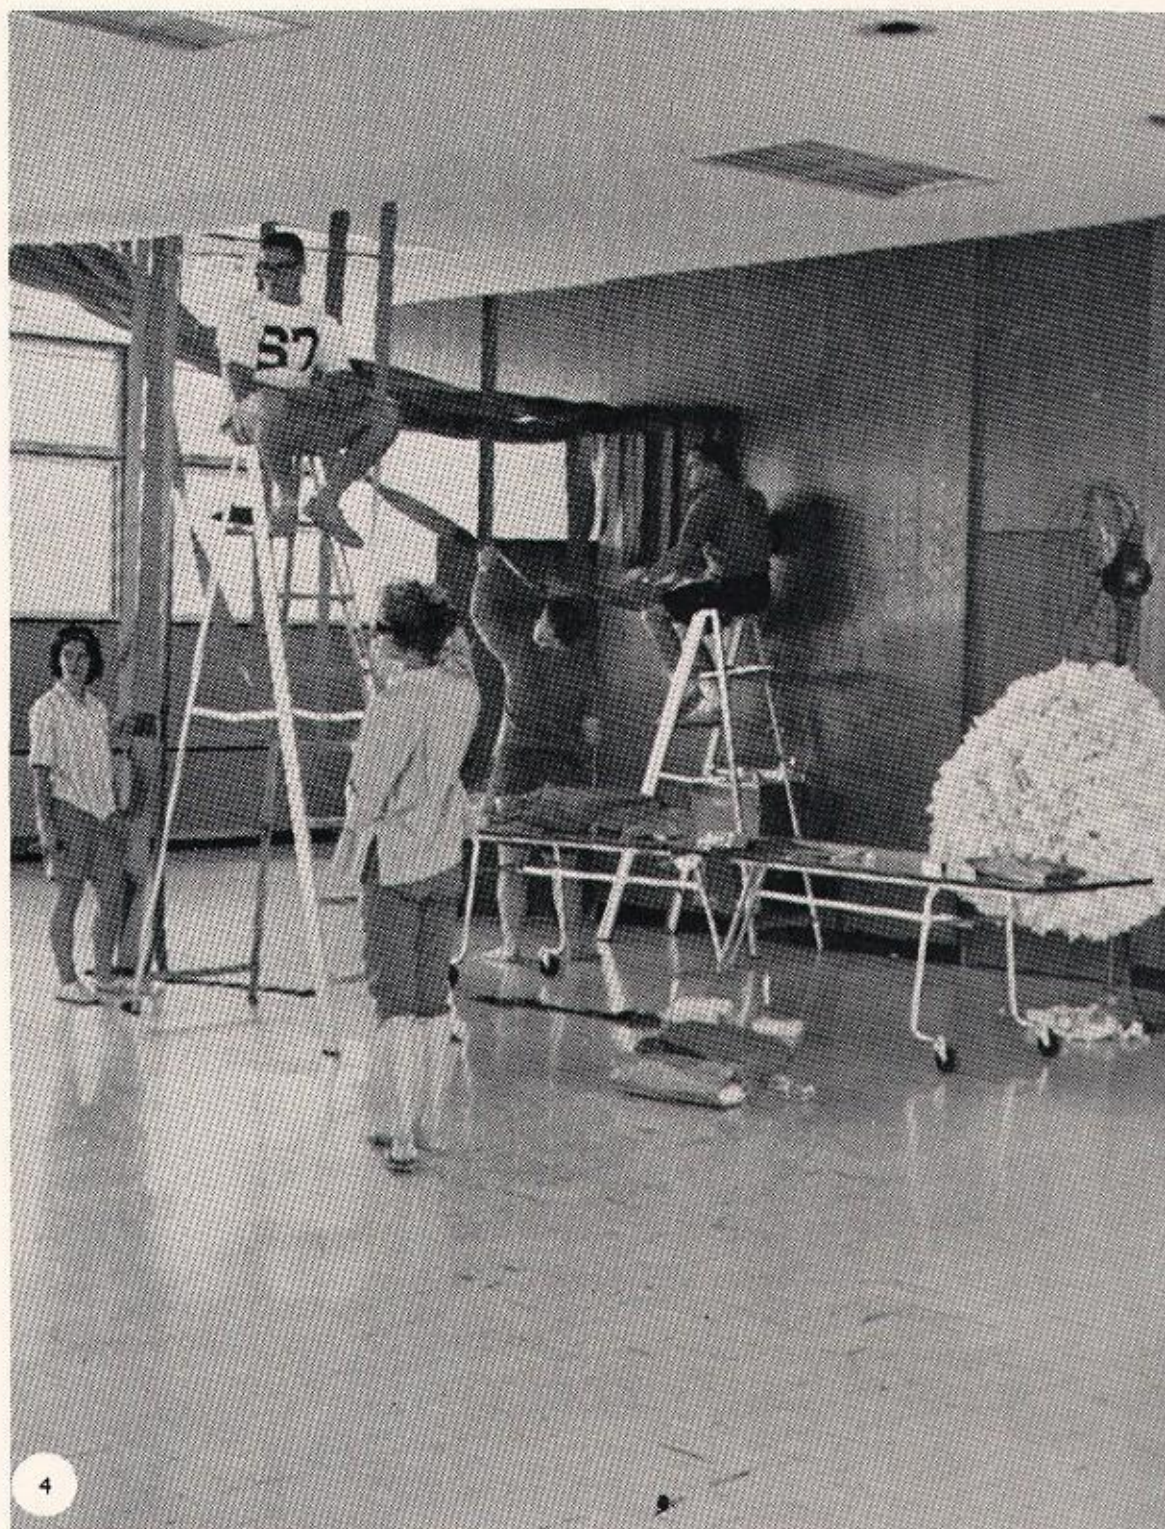

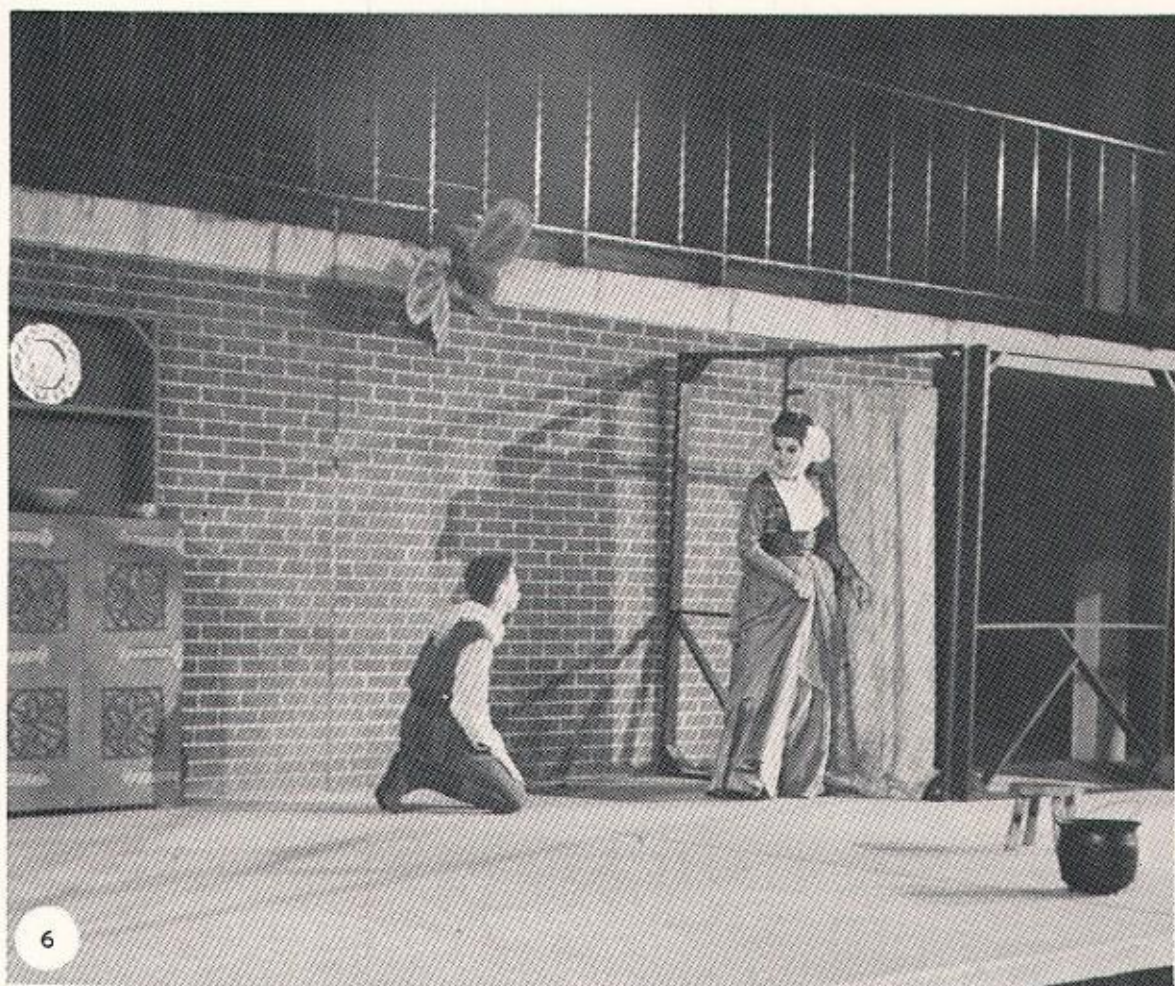

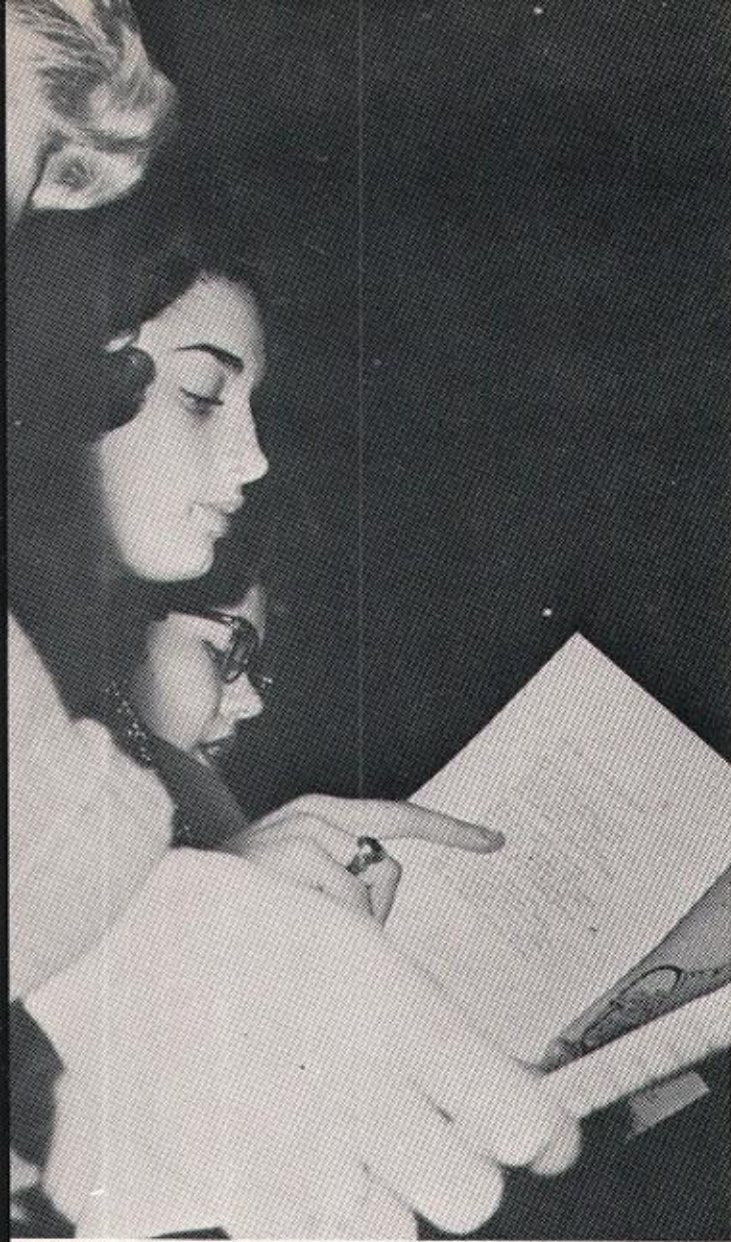

Millie Zaech and Colette and Priscilla Fields, Millie's American sisters and hostesses, arrive early for a session of the Executive Council.

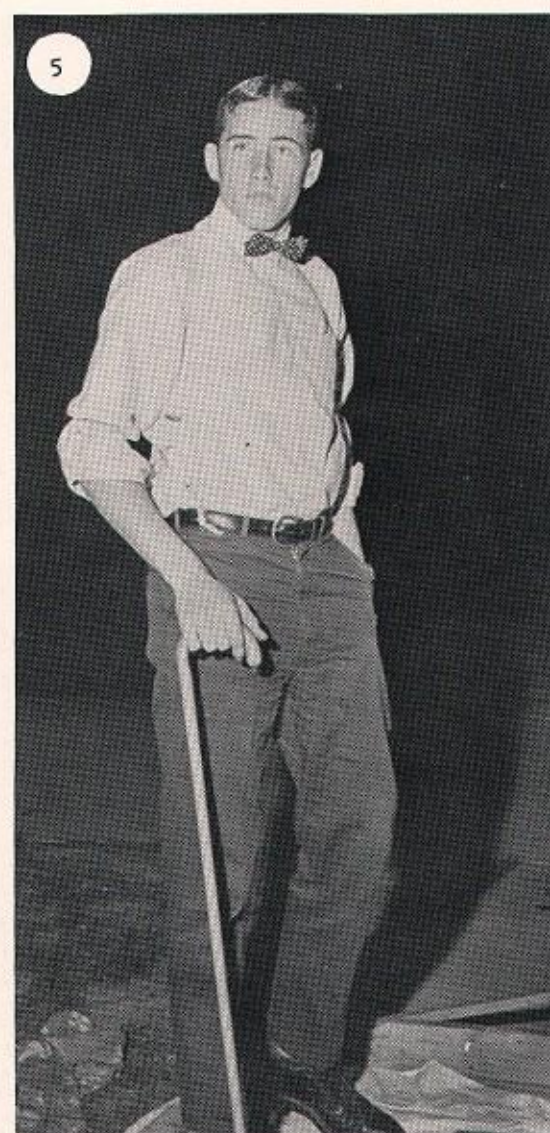

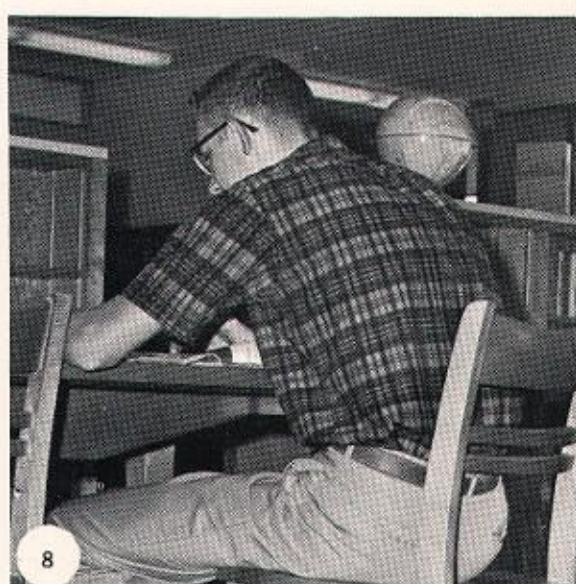

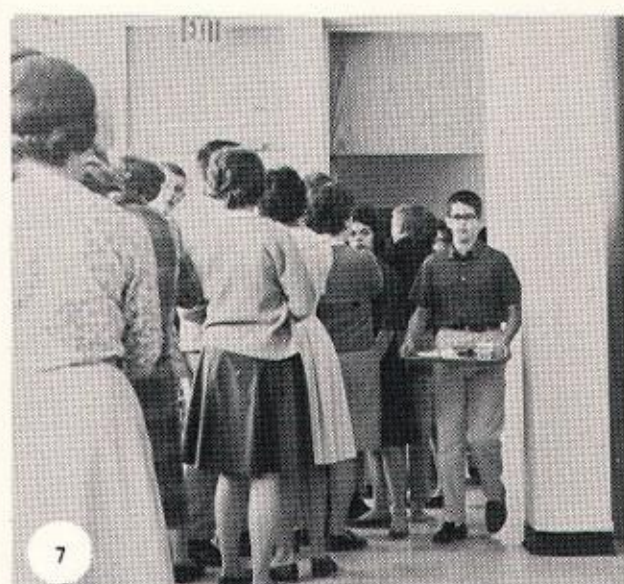

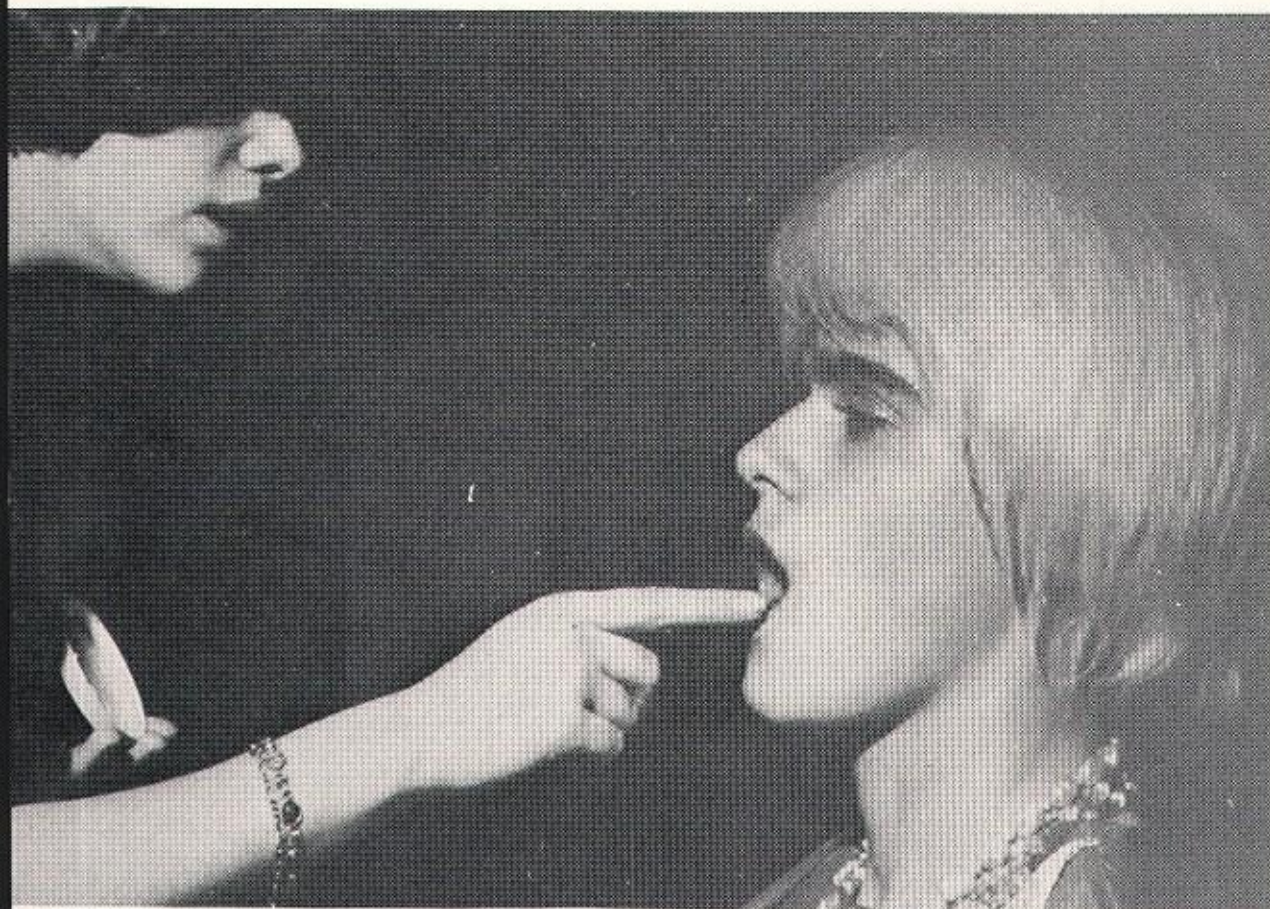

Dances And Other Good Times

(1) Holly Perdue, Bruce Cassell, Millie Zaech, Christine Marchant, Cathy Dugan, Queen Pam Jones, Besty Adams, Dixie Moore, Cindy Leeds, and Karen Adams, the court of the Christmas Dance, enjoy the floor show. (2) With reverence Aubrey Nichols follows the program of the Thanksgiving Choir Assembly. (3) Students explode with excitement during the Snake Dance before the pep assembly for the homecoming football game. Two hours of silence preceding the Snake Dance built up the tension. (4) Mrs. Young and four able junior assistants, Nelson Thompson, Charlie Fidler, Charles Winters and Fred Umberger, carry out the nautical theme in cafetorium decorations for the Junior-Senior Prom, "Moon River." (5) During the Fine Arts Department's "Spring Serata" (an evening of entertainment), the chorus sings "While the Lentils Boil." The serata play was based on "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil." (6) In a serata scene the Boy promises not to reveal the Queen's hiding place. (7) Mr. Parker, Dr. Kendig, Professor of English at Roanoke College, and Miss Umberger lead a junior and senior class discussion on Steinbeck. (8) Band members line up for the half-time show at the P.H., Jefferson football game. (9) Two of P.H.'s invaluable stage crew begin measuring the serata set.

1. Could Mr. Bartol, Mr. Secord and Mr. Pitzer possibly be making plans to install air conditioning at P.H. next year—or some year? Courtesy, B. V. Michel.

2. Besides the high-stepping Liberty Belles, P.H. has also this brass bell which was given to the student body by the Student Government Association. It is used at football and basketball games, and at pep assemblies.

3. Speaking of belles, Pam Jones really made a great showing for Patrick Henry in the Roanoke Junior Miss Pageant. Pam is Roanoke's Junior Miss and was second runner-up in the state contest.

4. Friendships are established at school. Billy Lane and Nita Weyhmann chat before Art class begins.

5. Looking like a real barker at a carnival, Bill Snidow takes part in the Patrick Henry Fair. The Fair, staged by the S.G.A., had everything from booths, to prizes, to cotton candy.

6. Susan Flora and George Bourne take time for a quick "hello" before going in to lunch.

7. Though there are six of them, the lunch lines are never short. From 9 a.m. on, 1227 Patriots are hungry.

8. And study is a part of school life! For a Civics project, Les Burnley works in the Library.

9. Anne Copenhaver adds the finishing bit to Don Forbes's make-up for the Boys' Beauty Pageant. This Pageant, sponsored by the Sophomore Class, was the main attraction of the Thursday night performance of the Fair.

354 frisky Freshmen . . .
365 sassy Sophomores . . .
258 jubilant Juniors . . .
250 serious Seniors . . .

Priscilla Fields, Executive Council Representative; Stephanie Traylor, Treasurer; and Carol Grasty, Secretary, pause after a Freshman Class meeting.

The class of 1966 had a busy, eventful first year despite the newness of being in a senior high school and being on the bottom of the class scale again.

The Sophomore Class, who initiated Slave Day last year, gave their followers permission to have it again, but only if they would encourage the continuance of it annually. The freshmen did this readily, and found out for themselves that Slave Day was highly successful both for fun and profit.

Freshmen were put in charge of the coat room for the Christmas Dance, and under the guidance of Billy Moatz, nothing was lost. In fact, three pair of galoshes were left over.

Members of the Freshman Class have shown outstanding ability in many fields this year. The class was well represented in sports, in the Youth Symphony, and one member was selected by the Optimist Club as the city's art student of the year.

Special praise should go to the secretary, Carol Grasty. In addition to keeping the class records accurately, she took care of all notices, set up meetings, and inspired her fellow classmen to participate in Slave Day.

Students journeyed home through the newly-paved student parking lot.

School Seasons

Marked by initial enthusiasm, book-laden students carefully stepped over construction work. After a first year of coping with parking lot gravel and mud, it was a relief to have the area paved, guttered and marked for cars.

Following months of books and tests, the winter holidays were welcomed by skating students amid the dogs and ducks at nearby Lakewood Park.

The balmy magic of May days meant Madras and short sleeve shirts and almost the end of another year.

Sophomore Class Of 1963 Were Active Leaders

Various new changes were seen in Patrick Henry's Sophomore Class. Teachers, upperclassmen, and parents saw a remarkable improvement in their progress on the way to adulthood. Sophomores learned to study and work for better knowledge, to get along with their fellow classmates and to make new friends, to accept responsibility and face up to new and difficult problems, to show pride in their school, and many began to plan for the future.

College bound students were making definite plans for the years ahead by taking more advanced courses. Many took the College Board Entrance Examination in their Sophomore year as a trial run, hoping the experience would better prepare them for doing their best in their Junior and Senior years, the important ones.

Every other Tuesday morning, the Sophomore Steering Committee met and, with the help of their advisor, Mrs. Florence Stump, planned activities of the class. Their biggest project of the year was the Boy's Beauty Pageant, presented on April 25th.

June, 1963, left Sophomores mid-way in their high school career, with two successful years behind them, looking forward to two more.

Junior Class Officers, Ellen Hall, Secretary; Ricky Harvey, President.

Keeping up with the pace set in their sophomore year, juniors took an active part in all school projects during 1962-63. Under the supervision of Mrs. Evelyn Giles, class officers were elected, dues paid, and class meetings held. Juniors participated in the athletic program, special assemblies, writing assignments, and numerous contests. Several juniors were winners in national essay contests and forensic competition.

Soon after the year began, the Kiwanis Guidance program started. Hoping to guide the juniors in their future vocational plans, men and women spoke once a month about their professions.

When the Foreign Student Project began, juniors supported it with anticipation for a future classmate. Competition between halls spurred them to raise money for the program.

In March several members of the junior class were tapped into the National Honor Society. Classmates were proud of them and hoped to be as successful next year.

Finally the year ended with the most important junior project, the Junior-Senior Prom. During the last semester, the juniors planned the theme and decorations. At the dance the seniors, guests of honor, were entertained by the juniors as a graduation present.

Class Of '63 Moved Into The Outside World

The Class of 63—ready for the outside world and advanced academic challenges! That is the way many people felt about the Senior Class that graduated this year. Many individual honors were won by this class, among them were the city B'nai B'rith award winner and two appointments to United States' Service Academies.

The Senior Class initiated a successful program of Senior Leadership Day. Seniors taught the classes throughout the school and because of the success of the program, it is to be carried out in following years. Senior Day was the day after final exams and it was then that the Seniors practiced for Graduation and presented the Senior Assembly for the rest of the school's enjoyment. The class also presented to the school a set of six stage platforms, a Virginia State flag, and a podium.

Baccalaureate services were held in the school gymnasium on the second of June with the Reverend Mr. F. Douglas Dillard as the guest speaker. Commencement was held on the school campus. On the sixth of June, the big day, our four valedictorians spoke on "Miracles of Change."

Classes And Exams Over— Graduation—At Last!

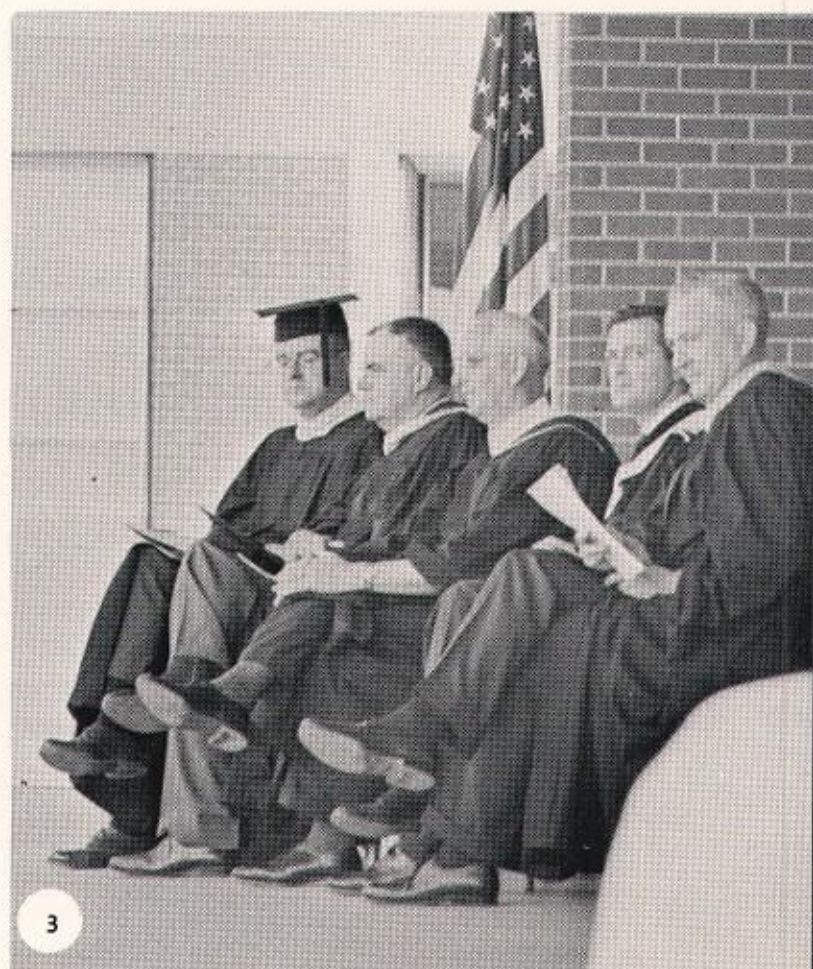

Senior Day, May 31st, brought breakfast, procession practice, picnic lunch and Senior assembly. The assembly, reflecting a space consciousness, presented the Class History, Will, Prophecy, Mirror, Poem and Yearbook dedication.

Plans listed Baccalaureate, Sunday, June 2nd, 6 p.m. in the campus Quad, with the Rev. Mr. F. Douglas Dillard, Jr., delivering the sermon. The day was overcast but Mr. Secord, with admirable hopefulness, insisted rain was scheduled for 7 p.m., not earlier. However, at 5:15, when obvious the elements weren't cooperating, chairs, palms and microphones were moved to the gym—guests and Seniors quickly following.

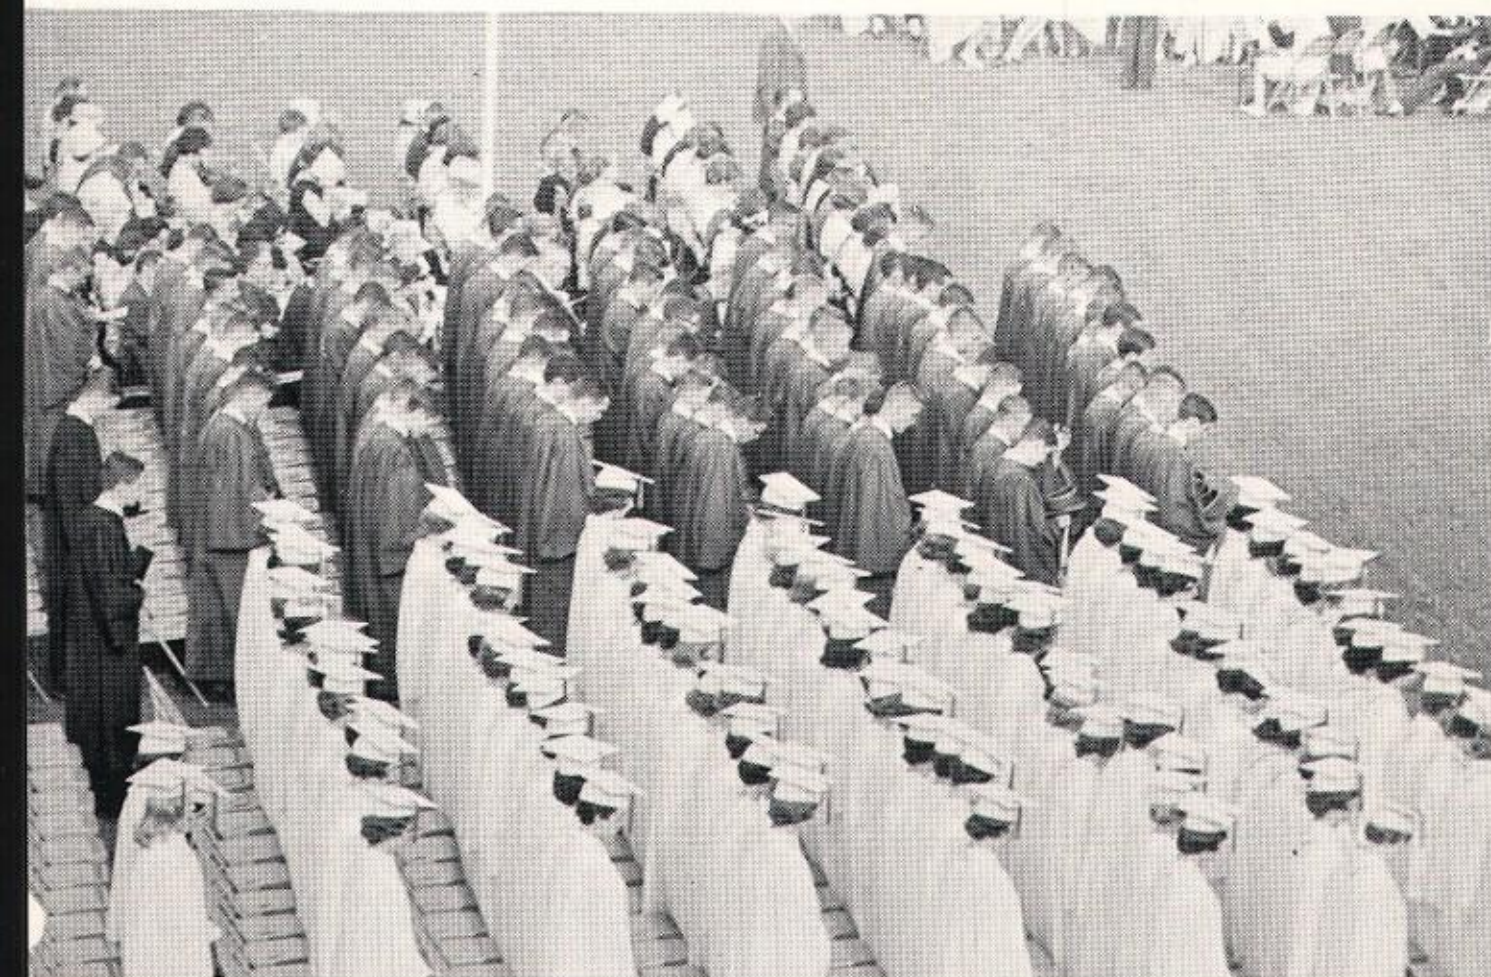

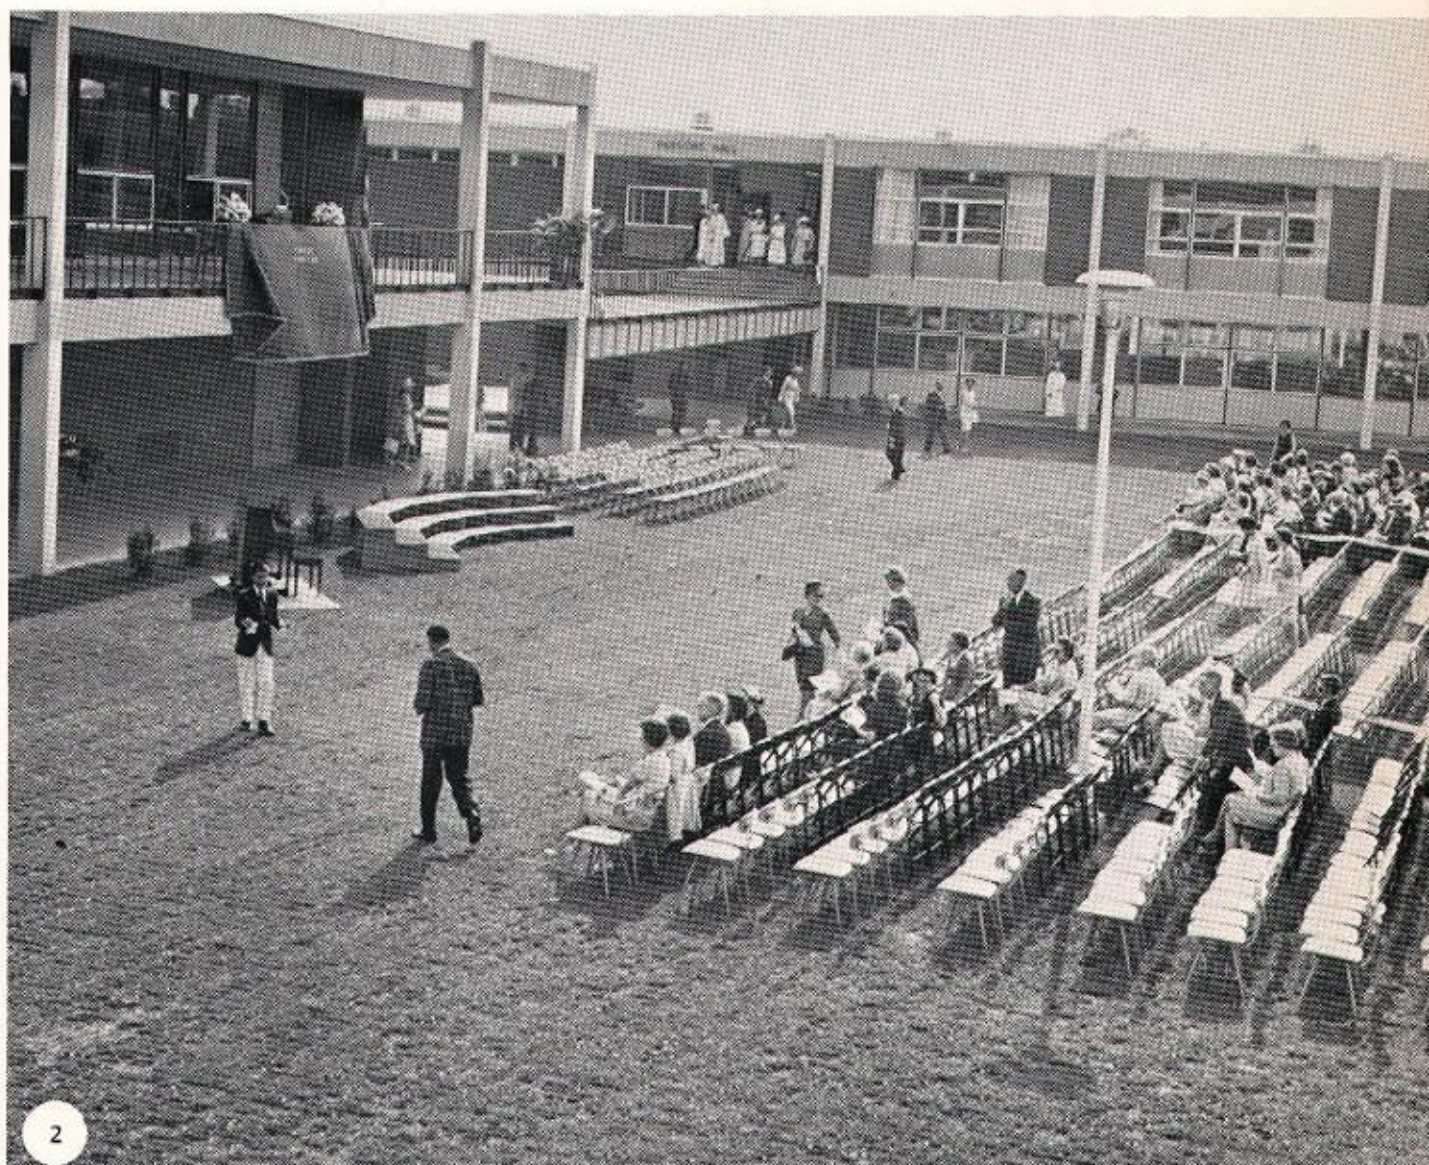

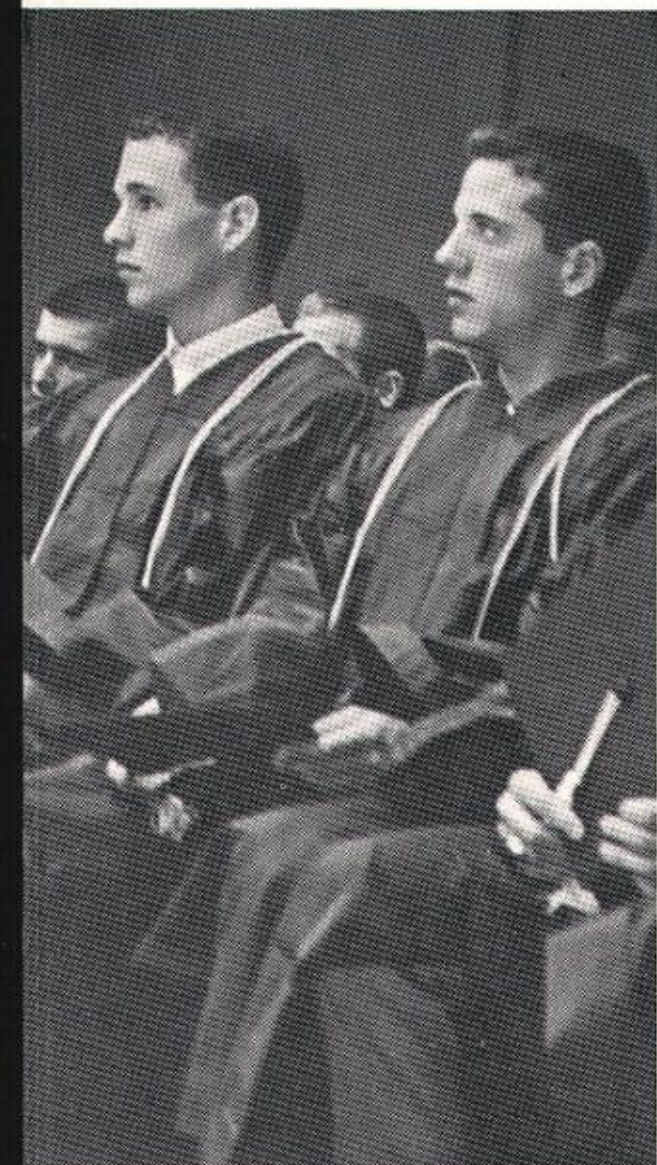

The weather was perfect for the June 6th, 6 p.m. Graduation. From Parsons and Persinger Halls, the academic procession moved in two lines. School colors of purple, white and gold were emphasized by the robes, flowers and large banner. Jim Stone, Gail Leigh, Sharon Stephens and Nancy Stinson, with straight 5.0 averages, gave addresses on "Miracles of Change," recent and planned in Patrick Henry's curriculum. Mr. Clarence Hawkins, School Board Chairman, and Dr. Frisby Smith, Director of Instruction, developed this from administrative viewpoints. The listing of scholarships, and Mr. Secord awarding diplomas to 245 beaming Patriots, was the appropriate ending.

While Dave Francis operates the telstar control board, Marty Fant and B. H. Rakestraw read the Class History.

1. Fifty members of the Class wear the long golden cord, signifying honor graduation. Five of the fifty, listening to a reading of the class Poem, "A Time For Remembering" by Lucia Lionberger, are Andy Dickinson, Bill Mangus, David Kaplan, Jeff Brown and Worth Boone.
2. More than a half hour early, guests begin gathering in the Quadrangle, facing the speakers' stand on the Library porch.
3. Mr. Pitzer, Mr. Hawkins, Mr. Secord, Dr. Smith and Mr. Bartol listen as Charles McNulty, President of the Class, welcomes parents, teachers and friends.
4. Seniors bow their heads for the invocation, pronounced by Sam Gantt.

Dark As Finality— Light As Future's Glow

Though the memory of Patrick Henry's glowing lights may fade, no senior or any other student is likely to forget the school itself. As the seniors go out into the world, they will stop to remember fun, study, and some worry at P. H. Some students will go on to academic or technical training, some will join the armed forces, some will go directly into employment, others will marry, but all will return—at least in their thoughts—to Patrick Henry and its campus.

Best luck to a real neat guy and a great friend. Raise lots of hell and don't do anything I wouldn't do.
Remember Mr. Hero
and History. Hope to see you next year.

Jack,
Good luck in Latin II (if you take it)
Next time you come to collect I'll get a big dog and "sic" him on you.

Luck,
Susan

Jocky

Lots of luck in the future, have fun this summer but do not raise too much HELL'O
